Drug Cost Probe Urged by Alberta

EDMONTON (UPI)—The Alberta legislature Tuesday agreed to ask the federal government to look into the cost of drugs. Members agreed to ask the government to examine the cost of drug manufacturing and marketing, to determine if retail prices are fair and reasonable.

Twin Moons Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP)—A pair of satellites launched from Cape Canaveral on a single booster rocket are in orbit, the defence department announced early today.

The doubleheader rocket carries the U.S. Navy's Transit III-B satellite and a smaller hitchhiking vehicle.

SEVERAL REPORTS

The brief announcement by the defence department said reports received from various tracking stations showed the satellites were in orbit.

The main satellite, a 250-pound vehicle, is another step toward development of a system to improve navigation for ships, submarines and airplanes.

TESTS FOR RADIO

The smaller "piggyback" vehicle, 54 pounds, is to be used for radio communication tests.

The satellites were aimed toward orbits about 500 miles above earth to cross the equator and travel as far north as Cape Canaveral and as far south as Johannesburg.

NEW BOMBARDMENT

It was the latest shot in America's heaviest bombardment of space. Within the past six days, the U.S. has orbited three other satellites. (See earlier story, Page 3.)

A navy Transit satellite was part of the only other successful twin shot, last June.

Mud Buries Farmer In Hen House

MISSION, B.C. (CP)—Rescue workers continued through a windy night Tuesday, attempting to reach a 32-year-old farmer buried alive in a chicken house beneath a 250-foot mudslide.

Police said there was "little hope" Wolfgang Fischer was still alive. He was buried as he fed his hens at mid-afternoon at his farm 15 miles from here.

Train Ditched 43 Injured

BUFFALO, N.D. (UPI)—Eleven cars of the speeding Northern Pacific train jumped from their tracks into a ditch Tuesday and 43 of the 51 passengers aboard were injured. The 13-car Chicago-to-Seattle train was travelling at an estimated 60 miles per hour when its two diesel units, two baggage cars, five passenger cars and four other cars left the tracks.

Britain Wants China To Be Seated in UN

LONDON (AP)—Britain will try to convince the U.S. that world disarmament can be advanced if Red China is seated in the UN, it was learned authoritatively Tuesday.

This will form a major British argument when Prime Minister Macmillan meets President Kennedy in Washington early in April.

But informants added there is no intention to exert heavy pressure to get the U.S. to change its policy toward Peking.

NO UNION CHECK-OFF DUES MAY BE GIVEN NEW PARTY

New B.C. Labor Legislation Bypasses 'Right to Work'

By PETER BRUTON

B.C. unions will be forbidden to contribute to the New Party through dues check-offs.

New labor legislation, introduced by Labor Minister Leslie R. Peterson last night, prohibits the payment of any money collected by an employer from a union member's salary to a political organization.

All unions will have to make a statutory declaration stating that no money collected by the check-off system will be contributed, either directly or indirectly, to a political organization or a candidate seeking political office.

NOTHING TO STOP

There is nothing to stop individual unionists from contributing to the party of their choice on a voluntary, individual basis.

The new provision was one of 40 amendments to the Labor Relations Act.

CCF spokesmen immediately termed the move "class warfare."

Among other provisions of the new labor code were:

- All B.C. unions must make available an annual financial statement.
- A judge may no longer cancel a union's certification or the check-off of dues system if he decides a strike is illegal.
- It is more difficult for employers to "lockout" a union.
- A conciliation officer has power to recommend that a conciliation board not be appointed.
- Procedure set up to bring quick settlement of grievances raised by union members.

There was no mention of a right-to-work law, frequently speculated upon since Mr. Peterson announced some three weeks ago that new labor legislation would be introduced.

SOME UNIONS

The move against union contributions to political parties has apparently been brought about by the decision of some unions to make contributions to the New Party which will be officially formed later this year by merging the CCF, labor and farmer groups in Canada.

Under the present provisions of the Labor Relations Act an employer is compelled to check off union dues from an employee's wages. This provision will remain in force except where any part of the dues is contributed to a political party.

NEW PROVISIONS

The new provisions read: "No employer and no person acting on behalf of an employer shall refuse to employ or to continue to employ a person and no one shall discriminate against a person in regard to employment only because that person refuses to make a contribution or expenditure to or on behalf of a candidate for political office."

ANY MONEY

"No trade union and no person acting on behalf of a trade union shall directly or indirectly contribute to or expend on behalf of any political party or to or on behalf of any candidate for political office any money deducted from an employee's wages . . . or paid as a condition of membership in the trade union."

"Remuneration of a member of a trade union for his services in an official union position held by him while seeking election or upon being elected."

'Interference' Says Labor

New labor legislation introduced by the government yesterday seeks to control the internal affairs of labor unions, according to Victoria Labor Council president R. C. Barrie.

"This makes B.C. interference just as bad as that existing in Newfoundland," said Mr. Barrie.

He declared labor unions in B.C. had no fears of exposing their books "because organized labor in this province is more democratic than our Social Credit government."

The move to prevent use of any part of dues checked off by employers for either direct or indirect political action, said the VLC president, "shows Social Credit is afraid of the New Party."

Ald. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of VLC, termed the same dues check-off amendment "the first step towards government interference in free collective bargaining."

New Act Bill 42

The new act to amend the Labor Relations Act is Bill 42. The labor act two years ago which caused all the commotion was Bill 43.

Bad for Everyone Legislature Told

It was a pity that Labor Minister Leslie Peterson had brought in new labor legislation, Cedric Cox (CCF-Burnaby) told the legislature last night.

"It's bad for labor, it's bad for the trade union movement, and it's bad for the whole province," he said.

"The hon. member cannot discuss the bill," ruled acting Speaker Alex Matthew.

"I'm not," said Mr. Cox. "I haven't even read the bill yet."

Luxton Becomes Lake

Headaches and troubles plagued residents of Luxton yesterday as flood waters lapped into homes and business establishments. Junction of Sooke highway, lower left, and Happy Valley Road, in heart of the settlement, is shown in photograph taken from Vancouver Island Helicopters aircraft by Colonist reporter Ted Harris.

Swimming in foot-deep water inside Happy Valley home of J. V. Alexander yesterday is this tame duck. Chesterfield was placed on table to keep it from soaking.

Many Ready To Flee Flood

Luxton district residents were ready to evacuate their homes yesterday as rains caused widespread flooding near Greater Victoria.

Nearly three inches of rain fell in the Luxton-Langford area between 5 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. yesterday, proving a major factor in flooding in the Luxton area, just off the Sooke-Happy Valley Road in the heart of the settlement. A tame duck swam contentedly about the living room, beneath tables and chairs stacked high with furniture.

Mrs. O. M. Finney, Cogan Road, whose home was surrounded by water, said it was "waist-deep in the basement but didn't harm the furnace which is suspended from the basement ceiling. We've lived here 16 years and we know how to cope with it."

FOOT DEEP

Water a foot deep flowed across the floors of a creek-side home at 895 Happy Valley, owned by J. V. Alexander. A tame duck swam contentedly about the living room, beneath tables and chairs stacked high with furniture.

Mrs. O. M. Finney, Cogan Road, whose home was surrounded by water, said it was "waist-deep in the basement but didn't harm the furnace which is suspended from the basement ceiling. We've lived here 16 years and we know how to cope with it."

SO DANGEROUS

She said she kept her children, Robin, 10, and Dianne, 8, home from school because flooded roadside ditches were so dangerous.

Rhodesia Proposal Angers Both Sides

LONDON (UPI)—Britain Tuesday proposed a new Northern Rhodesia constitution which it said slashed across racial lines and would provide for elections based on the candidate's personal qualities and not the color of his skin.

Almost immediately, federal prime minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland "unequivocally" rejected the proposed constitution and called up 3,000 white reservists to active duty tomorrow.

Welensky bitterly attacked the British plans to increase colored influence in the protectorate in a statement in the federal capital of Salisbury in Southern Rhodesia.

Spokesmen for extremist elements among the 2,500,000 blacks in the central African protectorate also denounced the proposed constitution and warned of possible violent repercussions.

Under the proposed constitution, African extremists would be denied their demand for a "one-man-one-vote" constitution. Instead, it would create 80,000 Negro voters in place of the current approximately 10,000.

Green Optimistic On Congo

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green Tuesday expressed "cautious optimism" that order can be restored in the Congo by United Nations forces working under the powers given them by the latest Security Council resolution. (See also Page 3.)

"I don't think it (the resolution) is perfect, but it should go far to strengthen the hand of the United Nations," he said.

CREWS BUSY

In Victoria, 2.16 inches of rain fell during a 24-hour period ending at 4 p.m. yesterday. All municipal work crews were out clearing drains, culverts and catch-basins of rain-swept debris.

Rowker Creek, boggy of many past floods, was running deep and swift along its whole course yesterday, but stayed within its reinforced banks. Some homes and a few businesses firms experienced basement flooding.

Nine Years Jail for Acid-Throwing Woman

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Inga Santala, a quiet, 46-year-old housewife from Nipigon, was sentenced Tuesday to nine years in penitentiary for an acid-throwing attack on a doctor she blamed for her child's death.

Mrs. Santala, dressed in black, sat in the prisoner's box of the Port Arthur courthouse, head bowed and eyes closed. She winced as Mr. Justice S. N. Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court passed sentence after describing her attack on Dr. E. R. Somerleigh as "vengefully premeditated and monstrous."

Mrs. Santala admitted waiting for Dr. Somerleigh in the back seat of his car until he emerged from a town council meeting. She poured the acid over his head as he drove away from the town hall.

During the trial, psychiatrist Dr. Kenneth Gray of Toronto testified that Mrs. Santala was obsessed with the belief that

Dr. Somerleigh had neglected to give proper care to her 10-year-old daughter who died of pneumonia more than four years ago. Dr. Somerleigh was cleared of blame in health board inquiries.

He said Mrs. Santala is in need of at least two years of psychiatric treatment.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

SUPPOSE we could all vote for or against a law by pressing a button on the television set.

Suppose that every major action of a government had to be tested in a lightning plebiscite.

The voters would have a glorious time rejecting everything that cost them money—in the same way that thrifty municipal ratepayers reject new schools.

The vote-indicator panel in Ottawa would flash and crackle like the Northern Lights, as the people threw out such money-eating monsters as the army, navy, air force, the CBC and Parliament; abolished taxes, and voted themselves pensions.

Then—after the binge was over—the hang-over would begin. The people would rush to their machines and vote those costly things back again—or some of them.

No politician (and especially, no statesman) would be able to govern if his decisions were subject to change at any moment by popular whim.

But a nation-wide referendum machine would be useful in telling the government how the voters felt.

And if you asked the voters today: "Do we want nuclear bombs and shells for the Canadian armed forces?" the answer would probably be a decisive: "No."

I don't think the people want atomic bombs on our soil.

Do we need the bomb in Canada, to scare the Russians? It might help do that. But the Russians are fairly frightened already. They may be ready to listen to peace talk—tough peace talk.

They might be impressed if the United States said: "We have decided not to give nuclear arms to Canada. And Canada has decided that she doesn't want them. We are working together to prevent the spread of fear. We hope you will do the same."

If the subject popped up on the screen of my electronic opinion recorder, that is the policy I would vote for.

But if the West and East go on flexing their muscles, piling up nuclear brickbats and making faces across the sea, there is a real danger that one day they will scare each other to death.

Your Good Health

Lock Up Medicine Stop Early Riser

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: I need your advice. I have three children, aged five, four and three. The girl five is very well adjusted to life and takes everything in stride, but the boy, four, is a nervous type. Try as I may, I cannot overcome the very serious problem of his getting up in the morning before anyone else, and emptying the medicine cabinets, cupboards, etc. The younger girl, three, is beginning to do the same.

"The boy is not neglected in any way to my knowledge, and is happy when he is praised. Anything you could tell me would be appreciated. —B. A. P."

Jeez, why don't people ask me easy questions? Let's get down to bedrock on this one. Whether it's emptying the medicine cabinets and cupboards, or something else, we have to try our best to figure out why he does it.

TRY SIMPLICITY Adults, I've found, are sometimes, perhaps usually, baffled by the utter simplicity of the things that activate children. While, naturally, I am wholly in accord with the things that the child psychologists and psychiatrists are gradually teaching us, I think we are sometimes too apt to hunt for complex answers when we ought to stick to simple ones.

In the above case, I don't think the four-year-old was frightened by a medicine cabinet when he was two weeks old.

Before we go on, let's insert this: I'm thoroughly worried about kids getting into medicine cabinets. A handful of "candy" from an aspirin bottle can be dangerous, even deadly. A sip of "cherry pop" from an antiseptic bottle can be serious. A hook at the very top of the cabinet can be good insurance.

It's also wise, as I've said before, to keep only the simplest, most harmless things in a medicine cabinet. But even corn plaster, nail files. The problem isn't cupboard. The problem is an energetic little boy who has to learn, and be helped, to stay in bed until it's time to get up.

and mouthwash can be perils. So keep the kids out, and keep dangerous things out.

Now what about the four-year-old explorer who gets up and prowls while everyone else is asleep? He's obviously an energetic, enterprising young one. But is his problem cabinets and cupboards? No.

This, it seems to me, comes down to a simpler answer: If, day after day, he gets up before anyone else, then maybe he needs less sleep. Maybe keeping him up another 30 minutes or an hour at night might solve the whole thing.

STAY IN BED But with or without that, I think he also needs discipline. By "discipline," I don't mean "punishment." Those are two different things. But he does need it. Learn that, at his age, he is supposed to stay in bed until his parents say, "Get up!"

Driver Tells Inquest Jury Traffic death in Oak Bay last Thursday evening of Mrs. Ethel Augusta King, 78, of 1270 Beach Drive, was ruled accidental by a coroner's jury yesterday.

The accident occurred about 9:30 on a rainy, windy evening, and jurors heard testimony of dark clothing worn by the victim, a pedestrian, and headlights blinding briefly the driver of the car involved.

SWEET TWICE Jurors and Coroner Dr. J. H. Moore were told by Martin Chambers, 21, of 3811 Miramontes, that he was driving south on Beach Drive near the boathouse when lights of an oncoming car swept twice across his windshield as the other vehicle negotiated a slight curve in the road.

"I was blinded completely," he said, "and then suddenly I could see perfectly, and this lady was right in front of my right fender. . . I seemed to hit her and stop the car in the same moment."

Witnesses testified that Mrs. King, a widow who lived alone in an apartment block at the accident scene, was walking diagonally across Beach from the ocean side of Beach toward her home when the accident occurred.

At the time she was wearing a black hat, black fur coat and dark blue skirt.

PASSING CAR She was taken immediately to Royal Jubilee Hospital in the car of passing motorist Clifford Brown, 1945 Ash, and pronounced dead on arrival.

Dr. Ross McNeely, hospital pathologist, said death was caused by brain damage and skull fractures.

Why Not Socialize Gospel?

WINNIPEG (CP)—Richard Seaborn (PC-Wellington) delivered a sermon in the Manitoba legislature Tuesday to underline his personal war against socialism.

The Conservative member said socialism could never be reconciled with a Christian concept of life. Socialism was being offered to the Canadian people in various subtle ways. One of the most "deceptive and alluring is this present drive for socialized medicine," Mr. Seaborn added.

He said the human body was the responsibility of the individual, not the state. But "we are directly responsible to God for the care and use of our bodies."

Mr. Seaborn said: "If we are to socialize medicine for the body, why not socialize the gospel for the spirit?"

Exempt Us, B.C. Urged

Weight of Details Worries Councils

Union of B.C. Municipalities has called on the provincial government to exempt municipalities from sections of a bill presented by Minister Westley Black a week ago.

The bill calls for public bodies receiving grants to make detailed statements on how the money is spent each year.

A copy of the UBCM letter to the government, received at city hall Monday, called for exemption of municipalities from having to give an individual accounting for each expenditure of $500 or more.

No council wished to deny information to ratepayers, the letter went on, but this already was provided for by present annual statements. The new detailed statements would put an immense work load on civic staffs.

Noakes Charge Rejected

Area commissioner W. D. Osborn had a terse answer yesterday to former commissioner Courtney Hadcock's challenge to the commission to defend itself against a charge made by former assistant manager Kenneth Noakes that funds were spent "unnecessarily" on auditing and bookkeeping because his offer to stay on was rejected.

"As far as we are concerned," replied Mr. Osborn, "any added expenditure has been more than justified by the results of reorganization."

Logger, Boatbuilder

Pioneer Woodsman Ernest Brown Dies

Ernest Brown, 72, pioneer logger, sawmill owner and boatbuilder, died Monday in Victoria.

Until a year ago he had been operating a one-man sawmill and boat yard at Cascade Harbor on Nigeli Island at Vancouver Island's northeast tip.

For some time he was the sole inhabitant. And at one period, he felled trees alone, floating them to his mill, cutting them into lumber and fashioning the lumber into boom boats and fishing vessels.

He emigrated from his native Leeds at 16, taking up land with his parents, brothers and sisters at Victoria and on Nigeli Island.

He and his brother Edmund built a small steamboat, sailed it to Nigeli Island and began clearing the virgin bush.

Ernest Brown stayed there almost the rest of his life—except for service with the 230th Forestry Battalion in France during the 1914-18 war.

He came down from Nigeli Island a year ago because of ill-health, and had been planning to return.

Surviving are his brother, at 901 Hereward Street, and two sisters, Mrs. H. Horner, Victoria, and Mrs. E. H. Beane, Sooke.

Aging Jets Won't Be Replaced

OTTAWA (UPI) — Defence Minister Douglas Harkness indicated yesterday the government will not replace its aging CF-100 jets being "phased out" of four of Canada's nine squadrons this year.

Opposition leader Lester Pearson asked if this meant that Canada then would contribute only five squadrons to North American defence.

"I think the leader of the opposition is capable of that simple arithmetic," Harkness replied.

U.S. Offers To Go

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. has conditionally offered to withdraw its military technicians from Laos and channel its military aid to that country through a neutral commission, it was learned Tuesday.

In return, the U.S. wants Russia and her satellites to end their military aid to Lao-Lao Communists.

The proposal also was made conditional on agreement by several parties, the Laos government, other allies and three neutral nations — Cambodia, Malaya and Burma which King Savang Vatthana has asked to act as a peace commission for Laos.

Under the proposal, the more than 100 U.S. military technicians in Laos would be replaced by officers from the neutral nations.

The proposal, apparently approved by President Kennedy, was a sharp departure from past policy.

U.S. Speeds Buildup—Russia Says It's Ready

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. defence department is almost ready to hand President Kennedy a defence speed-up plan calling for a $2,100,000,000 increase in former president Dwight Eisenhower's military budget.

The plan calls for speeding missile production, increasing the number of jet bombers on 15-minute alert and boosting the size of conventional forces for "bushfire" wars.

The proposals, a follow-up to Kennedy's campaign criticism of U.S. defence policy, would add an estimated $2,092,000,000 to the $41,840,000,000 military request which Eisenhower sent to Congress.

The plans are designed to provide a retaliatory force well protected that it could survive a surprise attack and deal any enemy a death blow.

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia's army chief of staff has stated the Soviet Union is pushing ahead at "full speed" with Nikita Khrushchev's program to cut Soviet armed forces and place greater reliance on rocket and nuclear weapons.

Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky, a Soviet deputy defence minister, said Russia's armed forces have reached an "unprecedented high level" of military preparedness.

He said the task facing Soviet armed forces was "to fight against the threat of rocket-nuclear war, to fight for general and complete disarmament and for the preservation of peace."

Khrushchev announced a year ago that Russia's armed forces were being cut to 2,423,000 men.

Satellite Trouble Stops Record Bid

VANDENBERG AIR BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The U.S. air force Tuesday called off its attempt to recover a capsule after a record four days of orbiting earth because of an equipment failure in the Discoverer XX satellite.

The difficulty, not described by the air force, meant a blow to the Discoverer program after a series of successes that included orbiting of two satellites in as many days.

Had the U.S. succeeded in the recapture effort, it would have been a record — coming four days and 1,500,000 miles after launch.

There was no immediate information on whether the setback would change plans to send a monkey aloft in a Discoverer in about a month.

Three for Space

Perfect Shot For Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — U.S. scientists Tuesday rocketed an unmanned one-ton space craft 1,425 miles in a near-perfect rocket shot, then labbed three astronauts as candidates for America's first spaceman — possibly by April.

The purposely tough test proved man could take just about the worst jolts that a capsule running into trouble could be expected to meet and remain intact. That was all Project Mercury officials needed for a long-awaited "go-ahead."

Robert Gilruth, director of the $300,000,000 Mercury program, immediately named Marine Lt. Col. John Glenn Jr., air force Capt. Virgil Grissom and navy Commander Alan Shepard Jr. to start getting ready for a manned flight.

The "select three" already are in a final training program for the day that may come within eight weeks, when one will be tapped as the winner and hoisted into a capsule aboard a Redstone rocket for a trip 115 miles into space and 300 miles over the Atlantic Ocean.

This does not break up the team of seven astronauts which have been in training since the program began 22 months ago, however. Gilruth said the other four "are eligible for selection for later ballistic and orbital flights."

Fleming Backs Bond Deal 'Stopped Market Crash'

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance minister Fleming vehemently denied Tuesday "gross mismanagement" of the unemployment insurance fund as charged by opposition leader Pearson.

The Liberal leader said Monday the fund's investment committee lost the fund $70,000,000 when it converted $300,000,000 worth of Victory Bonds to conversion bonds in 1958, then had to sell off some of the latter to meet heavy obligations.

Mr. Fleming did not deny this loss, but maintained in the Commons the loss would have been greater if the fund had held on to its Victory Bonds.

The minister said it would have been imprudent for the fund to have denied itself the higher interest yields of the conversion bonds.

CRASH LIKELY

If it had liked its Victory Bonds for short-term treasury bills, as recommended by Mr. Pearson, it would have "sent the market crashing."

Victory Bond holdings of other Canadians to the tune of millions would have been lost.

Mr. Fleming described the Liberal policy as "utterly irresponsible," "destructive," "damaging" and "shameful."

BANK'S ROLE

Mr. Fleming reiterated the Bank of Canada and not the government has statutory authority for monetary policy.

Mr. Pearson had said that unless the government took responsibility for monetary policy Canada would face a major constitutional crisis.

CONTROL CRUX

Mr. Fleming said the crux of monetary policy is control of the money supply. Under the Bank of Canada Act, the government had no right to change the money supply, a responsibility of the bank alone.

Liberal and CCF motions on the issue were beaten by identical votes of 147 to 41.

Katanga Mobilizes Against UN 'Menace'

ELISABETHVILLE (UPI) — Katanga President Tshombe ordered a "total mobilization" Tuesday and barred all foreigners from leaving his Congo state in retaliation for what he called "a declaration of war by the United Nations."

Tshombe said the mobilization order affected all whites and blacks in Katanga in a move "to defend lives and property menaced by the UN."

action until after such a conference.

Meanwhile, reliable sources said a reign of terror against whites is raging in Kivu province in the wake of the killing of Patrice Lumumba.

Mutineers and pro-Lumumba troops disarmed local police and are roaming the countryside, looting, pillaging and beating villagers.

PANIC ADMITTED

The UN now openly uses the word "panic" to describe the feelings of isolated whites in Kivu. A massive airlift and force, if necessary, may be used to get the whites out.

Another official of the Lumumba government has been executed in South Kasai state — former presidential secretary Jacques Lumumba.

UN RESOLUTION

The order was announced shortly after the UN Security Council called for withdrawal of all Belgian and other foreign military and civilian advisers from the Congo and authorized use of force if necessary to prevent civil war.

At the same time Tshombe called to all Congolese leaders to meet March 6 in Geneva to "reach a solution" of the tangled Congo crisis.

End Air Strike—Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy Tuesday appealed for an end to a strike that has closed three big U.S. airlines and all but shut down three others.

The plea was made through Secretary of Labor Goldberg after Kennedy set up a three-member commission of professors to look into the dispute which led flight engineers to quit their jobs.

Goldberg said the airlines promised him there would be no disciplinary action.

But in Los Angeles Western Air Lines fired all flight engineers and started hiring replacements.

In Miami Judge Emmet Ever is in the treasury. Choate held flight engineers in New York alone, more than 125,000 passengers have tempt of court and fined been held up since the strike the local $200,000 "or what" began Friday.

Why you'll have to look carefully to find a used Rambler

(if you can find one, buy it quickly!)

If you have ever looked around the used car lots or scanned the used car ads in the newspapers you may have noticed that there are very few used Ramblers about.

When you talk to a Rambler owner you'll find out why. Rambler owners tend to treasure their cars as prized possessions, because a Rambler is not a car you buy for this year or maybe next. Rambler cars, all models, are built for the enjoyment of many thousands of comfortable, trouble-free miles.

RAMBLER'S "SECRET"

What makes a Rambler so special is really simple. American Motors set out to build sensibly proportioned cars that are comfortable, economical and longlasting. The company decided that its cars should retain their styling unless there was a really good reason for changing it.

This seems to be the only sensible way of building cars, but evidently a lot of other automakers still have not seen the light.

HOW RAMBLER PRESERVES THE VALUE OF YOUR CAR DOLLAR

Automobiles depreciate in value as they grow older, but Rambler has taken important steps to limit this devaluation of your investment.

There are two main reasons why cars lose their value:

1. OBSOLESCENCE: Annual styling changes, creating obsolescence artificially, make the previous year's model worth less.

Rambler's styling is designed around the car's engineering features and will remain unchanged unless there are good and valid reasons for change. Ramblers, as they are now, have proved themselves convenient and comfortable. They are neither too big nor too small. They are easy on the eye and they are easy to handle in today's traffic conditions. So unless major engineering developments make a change desirable they will stay as they are.

2. WEAR AND TEAR: Naturally, a car that wears out quickly, or falls apart after a certain number of miles, loses its value.

THERE ARE MANY MORE FEATURES THAT WILL MAKE YOU WANT TO BUY A 1961 RAMBLER CLASSIC. DROP IN AT YOUR NEAREST RAMBLER DEALER'S AND LET HIM SHOW YOU.

An Able Example

THE meeting between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Kennedy will do much to negate the growing and persistent forecasts of bitter animosity springing up between Canada and the United States.

Certainly the fact that differences exist cannot be ignored—but they are comparatively small ones easily solved by discussion and mutual trust. Unfortunately, in recent months a number of irresponsible politicians on both sides of the border have seen fit in their everlasting search for self-glory and headlines, to promote these minor divergent views into something approaching a major international crisis.

It can now be reasonably assumed that the two heads of government have laid to rest these vicious and dangerous rumors and have each a clearer understanding of the problems facing the other.

Mr. Diefenbaker's firm statement that Canada will not withdraw her support from NORAD is indeed looking for an even larger and more important role in the defence complex of the continent, will remove any doubts held by the new Washington administration as to Canada's position as a strong, trustworthy and proudly independent ally willing to bear her full share in any defensive partnership.

Monday's meeting and Mr. Kennedy's acceptance of an invitation to visit Canada during the present Parliamentary session, will prove to the rest of the world that the two great North American nations have a solidarity of purpose and a strength of unity.

It also sets a strong foundation for further discussions on a myriad of common problems, the solution of which can only result in benefits to both nations.

It is to be hoped that the other Western allies will follow the example so ably set in the full recognition that their sovereign independence can only be retained if they play their full part in any mutual defensive scheme.

The Lottery Question

THE federal government, under pressure for long to ease the provisions of the criminal code with respect to sweepstakes and the like, is studying the question of public lotteries. How far it might go in this direction is meanwhile a guess. No doubt it will step warily lest it offend too deeply some shades of opinion.

There is nevertheless a large public sentiment in favor of games of chance, as the racetracks and support given to prize drawings of all kinds amply demonstrate. There is concern also about the large amount of money, running into millions, which annually leave the country in outside sweepstakes. It is felt this money could be put to good use at home.

The lottery situation in Canada at best is anomalous if regarded from any ethical viewpoint. The principle of participation is admitted by existing laws which permit bingo and other types of lottery within certain limits. These are so confusing and prize drawing so rampant that patently all kinds of manoeuvres are adopted to widen their range as far as possible. A blind eye is often cast on them by legal authorities.

There is a hint that federal legislation might permit provincially-operated lotteries for hospital, charitable or educational purposes. This is likely to be the form that any easing of the criminal code would take. The federal government would thereby escape any onus from running lotteries themselves and would be able to rebut some provincial demands for financial assistance by leaving it up to the provinces to raise money this way if they saw fit. Some of them at least would probably jump at the chance.

How the Sacred government of British Columbia would react to such a proposition there is perhaps no telling. Unless, that is, it is beginning to feel hard up; the recent gas tax suggests that new avenues of revenue would be welcomed. The temptation might be too difficult to resist, and after all a government with no compunction about taking a cut from the pari-mutuels—as large a lottery as exists—and from profiting from the liquor trade, is scarcely in a position to be too unctious about lotteries.

The premium bond system adopted in Britain a few years ago might offer a compromise acceptable to conflicting shades of opinion on this subject.

Making Life Simpler

AT LONG last, it appears, the British Treasury is going to get down in earnest to the business of putting British currency on the decimal system. No one seriously doubts that the pounds, shilling and pence system, with 12 pennies to the shilling and 20 shillings to the pound, is a time-consuming antique that ought to be scrapped.

However, the switch-over to a system in which everything comes into multiples of ten is not simple, and is likely to become a matter of acute controversy in the United Kingdom.

One of the suggestions is that the pound should be halved in value as a unit so that there would be ten shillings to the new pound, while the humble penny would be elevated to ten instead of 12 to the shilling. In this way the pound would be worth 10 shillings, or 100 pennies—ideal from the decimal point of view. Others, however, will resist any change in the value of the pound, and that would lead to greater complications.

When other countries, like Canada, changed over to decimal currency, financial life was not complicated by the hundred-and-one uses of today's coin-operated machines. So Britain will have to do it the hard way if it is eventually going to reap the benefit of decimalization.

If Canadians or others should feel rather superior about their own foresight, it should be remembered that while we changed our currency to multiples of ten, we are still operating on our dreadfully outmoded weights and measures tables.

We have inches that are 12 to the foot and 36 to the yard; we have miles that run to 1,760 yards, and are there not three types of ounces—dry, fluid and troy—all different from one another?

We have gallons that run 45 to the barrel—in Canada but not in the U.S.A.—and freezing point is 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

School would be a lot easier for our youngsters if we had done as the French did in converting not only their money, but their weights and measures as well into the decimal system.

Maybe it is time we should think about converting our heterogeneous collection of pecks, rods, bushels, furlongs and pennyweights for the orderly array of decimalized metres, litres and grams.

Interpreting the News

Controlling The Congo

By JOSEPH MacKAY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

IF some evil genius had sat down and figured out a sure way to wreck peace hopes in The Congo, he couldn't have evolved a more cunning scheme than what actually has happened—the execution of six followers of the slain Patrice Lumumba.

Dag Hammarskjöld, the cool-headed and urbane United Nations secretary-general, touched perhaps his first deepening note when, in reporting the executions to the Security Council, he said they were "humiliating to the world body."

"It is for the council to judge how this latest development, following the assassination of Mr. Lumumba and others, should influence the United Nations actions in relation to The Congo and various groups in The Congo."

After Lumumba, the former premier, was murdered his captors could at least contend that he was out of their hands in an escape attempt when his assassins caught up with him.

But the new action that Hammarskjöld described as "inconceivable" was reported fully as "execution" at the very time when the Security Council was showing signs of some progress on the basis of an Afro-Asian compromise resolution.

Katanga province officials said, in effect, they were not responsible for Lumumba's death, but they were glad it happened. Critics of The Congo operation were alert to point out that Lumumba was killed after being transferred from Leopoldville province to Katanga, while the new executions occurred after the victims were taken from Leopoldville to Kasai province.

All this deals a shattering blow to hopes of forming a broad-based government including Lumumbists, under President Joseph Kasavubu, who is strongly supported by the United States and other Western countries.

It also is not likely to strengthen Kasavubu's demand that The Congo's sovereignty be respected scrupulously—although on this subject the Security Council must consider the question of precedent as well as The Congo itself.

On the question of recognition, the U.S. and the Soviet Union clashed head-on last week—the U.S. backing Kasavubu while Russia backed Antoine Gizenga, deputy of Lumumba, and demanded UN evacuation of The Congo.

There was evidence that this square-off between the great powers frightened smaller countries, who saw the destruction of the UN in prospect, and caused them to strive harder for a diplomatic solution.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

RECENTLY in this space, a week ago today precisely, I remarked that man needs must love the things he works at. The changes that seven days may bring! I now have to add, as others before have had cause to do in similar circumstances, that a man grows also to love the men he works with.

Especially if he be one such as Roy Murdoch, whose sudden, swift passing has plunged all of us here in gloom. A colleague and confidant of this writer for 20 years, his memory will shine with us for long days to come.

Each of us in life belongs one to the other; each absorbs the patina of his close associates. No man lives alone nor can he be to himself alone. For those of us privileged to know him well something of Roy will remain forever. A man's legacy, particularly if he be a fine man, as Roy Murdoch was, is bequeathed by the spirit and the impact of his personality, to be treasured by those for whom this means much.

Time, as we know, is the great healer, softening the loss of sudden departure and leaving behind only those cameos that glow with warmth and gladness. For it is a glad thing to recall a richly pleasurable association.

For yours truly there will be many happy thoughts about his closest colleague. I am writing this in his room, still redolent with the atmosphere of his person. Up on the wall, in front of my eyes as I lift them, there are three yachting pictures, symbolic perhaps of the quality that marked this man from his fellows. He was a sailor at heart, with all the calm competence and resource the sea breeds in its devotees.

It was as a sailor that he came to Victoria, you see, making a landfall here at the helm of a small ketch from far away across the Pacific. Henceforth this was to be his home, and the waters of these shores his constant delight and challenge.

Strange are the ways of Providence. When the war came his bent naturally was the R.C.N., and an asset he would have been to that service. It was irony supreme, and a surprise to him too, that colorblindness should disbar his entry; ironic since neither before nor after did this small disability impair his seagoing skill in the slightest.

It was typical of him, also, that disappointment should not mar his sense of service, but that he should walk immediately to an army recruiting office and enlist in the Canadian Scottish. There his quality was soon appreciated and in no time at all, it seemed, he was captain and adjutant of his battalion.

This is but one memory picked out from others that this writer can recall vividly. Roy was an Irish boy; he grew up as a New Zealander; he became a Canadian; but he wore the Scottish kilt to perfection. He could not do other for he was tidy and neat of person, yet not all tidy people wear the kilt tidily. When he appeared among the Australians and Americans, as later he did, in New Guinea and other of the Southwest Pacific theatres of war, he must have commanded their admiration.

Assuredly among all the friends he has left behind there was admiration aplenty. One man said to me yesterday, shocked to the core by news of Roy's unexpected death, that "they didn't come any better." No, they didn't.

It was as a warm, attractive, human companion that those of us in this office will remember him. Downstairs in the printing rooms also, where none could have been more popular, there is sadness for the passing of a fine man, as there is in the outside circles that knew him well.

But it is something, surely, to have had a friend who made the grass greener by having walked on it. There is that comforting thought for comfort, and the echo of Benjamin Franklin when he wrote:

"His chair was ready first and he gone before us. We could not all conveniently start together, and why should you and I be grieved at this, since we are soon to follow, and know where to find him."

Turn Towards Peiping

Russia Is Also White

By OTTO VON HANSEN, 44

NUMEROUS commentators on the manifesto published at the end of last November's Kremlin meeting have underscored its recognition, at least in principle, of the primacy of the Russian Communist Party in the Marxist-Leninist world. This was interpreted as a clear-cut Russian victory over the Chinese.

On Jan. 6, Khrushchev spoke before high party cadres. Contrary to custom, his program of expose was not carried in full by Soviet press or radio. The mass publications mentioned the speech only in general terms or in form of direct quotations on economic matters.

The only exception has been the review, "Kommunist," which carried a complete transcript. This is a paper writing exclusively for party leaders and dignitaries. It thus has a small circulation. An attentive study of the text shows the obvious reasons for this unprecedented procedure.

The crucial part of Khrushchev's declaration deals with the position of Russian Communism in the Marxist-Leninist community. The Soviet leader admits that his country has lost its distinctive function. All parties are equal. If, in certain fields, the U.S.S.R. has given the example, this should not reflect on others. From this he concludes that the vastness of the Communist world makes it at present impossible to lead it from a single centre.

The paramount importance of this sentence is obvious. Khrushchev aban-dons the traditional Russian claim that Moscow is the capital of International Communism. He admits implicitly the establishment of other high commands of equal standing. This can mean only Red China.

These words recognize officially an existing situation. Communists of the non-white nations and the new states turn their backs on Moscow and gravitate towards Peiping. Whether they want it or not, the Russians belong to the white race and are bound to suffer from the consequences of this fact.

This development, already clearly visible in Asia and Africa, begins to be felt even in South America. We can already draw a new political equator around the globe, which, starting from Peiping, crosses the Mediterranean, moves slightly southward through Mexico City, turning northwest to rejoin its point of departure. Below this line, with few exceptions, Peiping is recognized as the new Mecca of Communism. To the north the Russians still cling to their supremacy. Since the spread of radicalism is mainly limited today, to the new countries, this division of the world obviously favors Mao Tse-tung's followers.

After the Kremlin meeting we suggested that Russia had paid too highly for its Pyrrhic victory. The Communist leader's words confirm that. This should be kept in mind at a time when the Soviets redouble efforts for a summit meeting with the new American president.

Comrade Exeter

Bloodhounds on a Blueblood

By CASSANDRA, from London

EVEN the late Senator Joseph McCarthy would have thought twice before setting his bloodhounds on the Sixth Marquess of Exeter, KCMG, LL.D., late of the Grenadier Guards, and accusing him of having Communist sympathies.

True, Comrade Exeter is a member of such hotbeds of Communism as Pratt's Club and the Junior Carlton, and has also been guilty of running in the Olympic Games at Marxist speeds that rivalled the performance of Mr. Bolotinikov in the 10,000 metres at Rome last year.

None of this, however, has deterred an American general, John V. Grombach, from putting an intelligence agency on Lord Exeter's trail for alleged Communist sympathies.

This apparently arose from the fact that Lord Exeter, better known as Lord Burghley, has gone on record as believing that in the world of sport it might be as well to take into consideration the mainland China where over 600,000,000 human beings live.

If General Grombach wants further ammunition to prove his case that the Marquess of Exeter is just another raging Commie, he might like to know that he was brought up in a Communist youth-cell called Eton, fermented in that hotbed of the proletariat Magdalen College, Cambridge, was a notably conservative Conservative MP, and has since been preaching fiery revolution on the directorial boards of such anti-capitalist companies as Grosvenor House (Park Lane) Ltd., Lands Improvement Company, National Provincial Bank, Fire stone Tyre Company and half a dozen other Leninist organizations.

In the United States, price wars are a commonplace.

In New York you can go to certain stores and buy goods at up to 35 per cent below list price.

In this country we have as rigid a price control as you will find anywhere in the world. The customer just pays what he's ordered to—and how.

On top of this we have distribution and selling costs that are fantastically high.

I was talking to a man who is a successful manufacturer and he was remarking on the enormous gap between the price he got for his product and the figure at which it was sold in the shops.

He said: "Everybody seems to get a cut."

"The wholesalers take their whack for doing practically nothing. The retailers demand a profit which is quite out of proportion to their function."

"On top of this there are high-priced salesmen and costly spending on advertising with all the accompanying retinue of market research workers, stylists, packaging experts and various other wily devils."

"Add to this the cost of delivery charges, storage, insurance, legal advice, patent agents and the marketing of various predatory birds who contribute virtually nothing to the product, and you will see why the ultimate price in the shops has no proper relationship to the cost of manufacture."

"I am the least in this preposterous chain."

"I only make the stuff."

The Packack

They Need Confusion

By GREGORY CLARK

A PSYCHOLOGIST tells me that there are considerable numbers of persons, both women and men, who are not happy unless they are in the midst of a state of confusion not only part of the time but all the time.

Orderliness frightens them. They feel suffocated by regularity, method, arrangement. To have to be on time, to feel they have to be at a certain place at a certain moment, gives them the sensation of being harnessed and confined. To be obliged to have their homes in a state of constant tidiness seems to affront some inner sense of freedom. They are happiest when their kitchens look as if a hurricane had hit them. If someone tidies up a man's workbench or desk, he has an immediate compulsion to disarrange it. Women secretaries are familiar with this type of boss who, on arriving at his office and finding his desk bare and trim, is ill at ease for an hour until he has got in a muddle. He does not feel he is working unless all his phones are ringing, his table heaped with urgent messages, his staff perplexed and confused. By noon, such a man is in his element.

Confusion is needed by some people in order to stimulate their nerves, minds and glands into lively operation. (Copyright, Canada Press)

New Strong Man

The Ruler Of Krupps

FOR the last seven years the direct-general and strong man of Krupps, still one of Europe's great heavy industrial combines, has been Herr Berthold Beitz.

With Herr Beitz's rule at Krupps, a new kind of German businessman has conquered the very citadel of the old industrial ruling class, and changed it almost out of recognition. Often in their forties and fifties, often of unimportant origin, and always outsiders, these new men have broken, sometimes by chance, into the charmed circle of big business during the surrealistic postwar years, bringing fresh minds, bright ideas and a certain cool daring.

Beitz is only forty-seven. His father, who is still alive, was a banking cashier in a small town in Pomerania; his mother had been in domestic service before she married.

After secondary school and a banking apprenticeship, Beitz worked for Shell in Hamburg, married, and seemed set on a humdrum commercial career. Then came the war, and at the age of twenty-six he found himself in unfettered charge of the Gallian oilfield in conquered Poland.

Four years later, with his job ended, he was an NCO in the Wehrmacht; another year later, the penniless inhabitant of a one-roomed hut, which he shared with his refugee parents, his wife and daughter the now has three daughters.

His first job after the war was as an agricultural laborer, but in 1916 a British major appointed him deputy chairman of the zonal insurance control department—such was life in Germany at that time.

After another three years—there had been currency reform in the meantime, and the occupation regime was melting almost as rapidly as the German occupation of Poland, four years earlier—he became, at thirty-five, director-general of a big German insurance concern, the Iduna Germania.

Suddenly, in 1933, on the day before Beitz's thirty-ninth birthday, during a walk round the Alster Basin in Hamburg, Krupp asked Beitz, after some coughing and silence, whether he thought he would like to make Krupps a going concern again. He would have full powers to act on behalf of the owner. It was like an old-fashioned proposal. Beitz accepted.

The Krupp-Beitz relationship would make a nice subject for a novel. Two men could hardly be more different. Krupp is almost a tragic figure—the frail fifth-generation heir of a crushing tradition, his natural shyness made worse by an over-strict, somewhat crown-princely education, by two failed marriages, by six years in prison for hideous offenses under the Nazis for which his responsibility may have been largely symbolic, and by the awareness that he is regarded with hatred by millions of his fellow men; a retiring man, sore and sensitive.

Beitz is a robust child of the people, self-made, self-confident to a fault, extravagant, exuberant, loving a joke, loving a fight, revelling in all the close human contacts which are torture to his master, direct, rude, sometimes shockingly tactless, sometimes touchingly good-hearted, utterly unself-conscious, utterly unafraid.

One could easily imagine the two men on opposite sides of the barricades in some old-fashioned battle between patriots and plebeians. As it happens, their close personal alliance has now lasted seven years and survived many knockouts.

In everything Beitz has been the active force; in so far as "Krupps" has been doing things and making news in the last seven years, Beitz has been "Krupps." He has been the prime minister with dictatorial powers; Herr Krupp no more than a very retiring monarch.

For the first two or three years, Beitz had a terrific fight to establish his rule. Krupps, as he found it, was a loose confederation of 97 firms, with 12 directors each managing his group of firms like a feudal lord, with a strict hierarchy, and a lot of exclusiveness and snobbery in the highest ranks.

Beitz set out to change this, while the ruling aristocracy in its turn determined to freeze him out. Beitz won. Many of the old guard have left, and the whole setup has been streamlined and centralized. (Copyright, UPI Inc.)

Peterson 'Warring' On Trade Unions

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson has declared war on trade unions, Rae Eddie (CCF—New Westminster) charged in the legislature yesterday.

He said that when Mr. Peterson spoke to the House earlier "he came out of his corner fighting. He has evidently joined with his colleagues in warning the unions that there was more of what he calls 'corrective legislation' coming."

"This Social Credit government has proved to me that it is basically anti-trade union," said the CCF member.

"If this government should be so unwise as to allow political vengeance (because of the tie-up of CCF and labor unions) to influence its thinking in regards to labor legislation, it could create utter chaos in the field of labor management relations," he said.

He warned that the 25,000-member IWA and several other large unions will be negotiating this year.

Mr. Eddie also charged the government has been withholding the spending of money for work-creating projects, although one in seven of B.C.'s working force is unemployed.

He said that "a search of public accounts shows their (Social Credit) policy of diverting money voted by the legislature away from work-creating projects to satisfy an obsession for so-called debt-free status."

He said failure to spend the money "removes jobs, increases welfare costs, reduces tax yield, and generally contributes to making the recession deeper."

B.C. Stand Is 'Right' In Power-Cost Issue

Peterson 'Bills' CCF After Brief Holiday

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson arose in the legislature last night to introduce a bill.

"This is it," said CCF leader Robert Strachan, expecting the long-awaited labor legislation.

"It's a great day for the working people," countered Mr. Peterson.

It was. The Act he was presenting was one amending the Annual Holidays Act.

Mr. Strachan was almost right. The labor legislation was the next item on the agenda.

Strachan Says:

Courts Will Reject New Labor Law

Opposition leader Robert Strachan issued a statement outside the House in which he said the new labor legislation is an attack on a fundamental political freedom.

"I am sure the Supreme Court of Canada will not uphold this violation of the fundamental right of a citizen or a group of citizens to aid the candidate of their choice," he said. "Over the years the scope of political decision and freedom has been widening and widening. This is the first curtailment of this right."

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston yesterday defended Premier Bennett's insistence on having Ottawa guarantee Columbia River power costs at 3.77 mills a kilowatt hour.

But the opposition jeered at the proposal.

"It's Alice in Wonderland tactics," said CCF leader Robert Strachan.

"Absolutely fantastic," snapped Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan).

Ottawa officials have consistently stated that Columbia River power can be delivered in Vancouver at 3.77 mills.

Premier Bennett has answered that if Ottawa will guarantee this figure, development of the Columbia will proceed immediately; otherwise it will have to wait until the B.C. Energy Board completes its survey.

B.C. spokesmen say it is absolutely impossible to set a firm cost of the power until engineering studies are completed.

Mr. Williston said Premier Bennett was right and any other decision would be "blank cheque financing that B.C. cannot afford."

Heart Deaths Far Ahead

More than twice as many British Columbians died from heart disease in 1960 than succumbed to cancer, the public health services report, tabled in the legislature yesterday, shows.

It shows the heart disease death rate for the year was 256 in 100,000 population while the cancer death rate was 108.6.

NO BOARD

Under present provisions a conciliation officer if he cannot get the parties to agree must recommend a conciliation board. The new act changes this and the conciliation officer can recommend that no board be appointed.

It is understood this is designed to make the bargaining procedure more flexible and that parties can get down to bargaining of a more serious nature at an earlier date.

TWO UNIONS

In cases where two unions are arguing over which should represent a member the Labor Relations Board will have the right to step in and decide the question. Provisions whereby a judge could cancel the certification of a union, its bargaining rights or checkoff privileges when he found a strike to be illegal will be cancelled.

KAME LINE

Employers will be brought into the same line as unions and no lockout may take place without 48 hours' notice. The time a union must give before it goes on strike. Another procedure designed to bring about quick settlement of grievances raised by union members gives the Labor Relations Board power to appoint an employer representative to an arbitration board to hear the grievance if the employer refuses to do so.

Recent rains and flooding had pointed up B.C. water problems, he said, and had indicated water control now is under too many authorities—municipal, federal and provincial governments and in the provincial government, under the departments of agriculture, highways and lands and forests.

MR. RHODES ALSO URGED:

● That the government give permits to government vehicles which would take them across toll bridges free of charge, thus eliminating a duplicity of booking. The money lost by the toll authority through this action could be made up through a direct subsidy of perhaps $25,000.

● More money on advertising agricultural products of B.C.

● A producer marketing board to handle distribution of fluid milk.

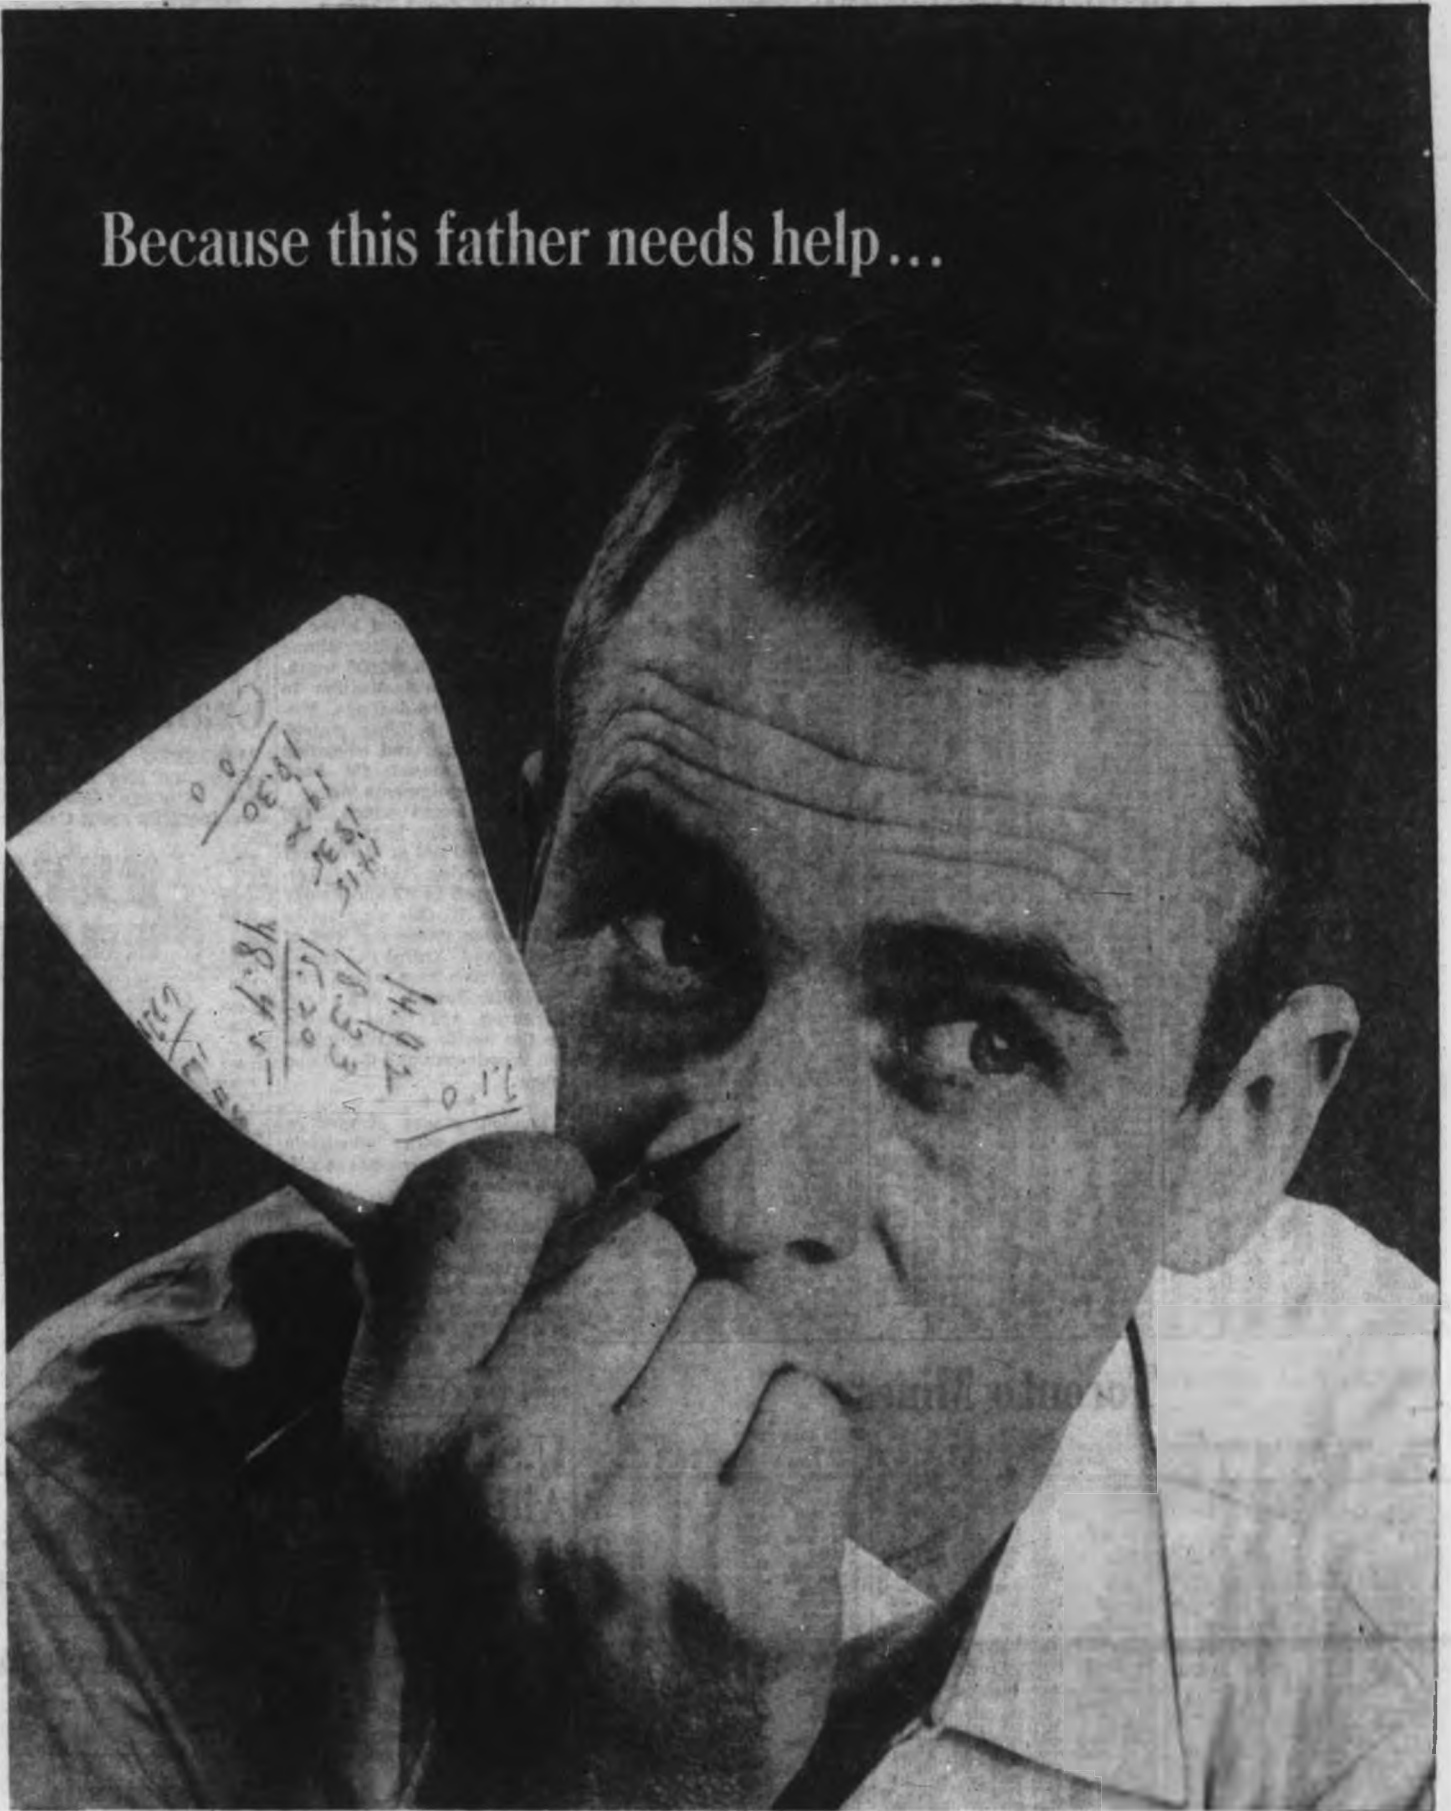

Producer marketing boards, he said, are one of the best means of raising the standard of B.C. agriculture produce, and this is essential if the province is to compete.

Because this father needs help...

Metropolitan announces a service for all fathers—

THE FAMILY SECURITY CHECK-UP

You don't have to have a lot of money to benefit from this special service which weighs your assets, your responsibilities (even your hopes) and lets you see where you and your loved ones stand. Your local Metropolitan representative has been trained to bring you this service.

Every year, millions of fathers have health check-ups. Yet millions of fathers don't check up on their family's financial health.

Where do you stand?

For example, what about those insurance policies you haven't looked at for some time? Would they be paid out the way you want? Or have you unintentionally "disinherited" a child?

Do you know how much your family will get under your life insurance program? How long could they live as you want them to live?

The answers to such questions may be even more important to a man of modest means than to the man with a fortune.

Now, Metropolitan—the company you look to for authoritative information on physical health—offers all fathers straightforward answers on financial health.

The Family Security Check-Up

With the help of your Metropolitan man—

1. You check the facts: your pension plan, your home, your life insurance, your savings and other assets. You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth.

2. You weigh your responsibilities: mortgage or rent payments, education, retirement, accident and sickness emergencies; how much it would cost your family to live without you.

3. You learn where you stand. You determine your weak and strong points . . . whether the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. You get the facts in front of you.

4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions—one which makes good sense for you.

Your local Metropolitan representative offers this service. He has been trained in Metropolitan's own schools and is qualified by solid experience. He is equipped with scientifically designed charts and tables that show you, in black and white, exactly where you stand.

This service costs you nothing except a little time. It is confidential. And there is no obligation—except to those you love. Call your Metropolitan man for your Family Security Check-up.

Don't Bar Flowers

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRMR

The Union of South Africa may not be particularly popular with the other members of the Commonwealth these days — in fact, I see there is a move on foot to boycott the purchase of South African wines. I would hate to see such a boycott extended to South African flowers, though, for some of our most colorful subjects come from this sunny land.

If you remember, one of our Colonial free seed offers some five or six years ago was of Dimorphotheca, the Star of the Veldt, and for my money this is still one of the most attractive of all daisy-like annuals. The seeds I supplied at that time were of a bright orange flower with a blue-black central disc; nowadays, the Dimorphotheca is available in a great number of shades, including lemon, apricot, buff and an especially fine white, with glistening pointed petals.

There is also considerable variety as to height and it is possible to select dwarf varieties no more than six inches tall right up to two-foot giants bearing blooms which sometimes measure up to four inches across.

Generally speaking, South African plants demand lots and lots of baking hot sunshine, with soil perhaps a little on the dry side. Our summers, therefore, are just about made to order for these subjects, and last summer in particular produced a most colorful display.

I don't think I have ever seen Dimorphotheca perform so lavishly. The flowers are excellent for cutting and we found them especially attractive arranged in an old burnished copper beer mug.

Another South African annual which was thoroughly at home in Victoria last summer is Mesembryanthemum cristiferum, the Livingstone daisy. This is a little fellow forming a spreading plant about four inches tall, with the fleshy leaves characteristic of all dwellers of the desert — like the cactus and succulents, the leaves store moisture to tide the plant over periods of drought.

As with Dimorphotheca, the flowers are daisy-like, about 1½ inches across and in a great variety of colors, including crimson, pink, buff, rose, apricot and crimson, and the blooms are produced in such profusion that you can hardly see the plant for the flowers. It flourishes in rather poor, hungry soil in a parched, sun-baked position and will often bloom within six weeks of sowing.

The Livingstone daisy has a most interesting cousin, Mesembryanthemum crystallinum, known to gardeners as the ice plant. Standing about eight inches tall, the fleshy leaves are covered with glistening crystalline dots, rather like frost, hence the name ice plant, again with daisy-like flowers.

This is a grand subject for south-facing window boxes and for hanging baskets in full sun and the plant is quick and easy to grow from seed. I am told that in South Africa — and in California, where the plant has become naturalized — the leaves are cooked and eaten like spinach, but this is something I have never tried.

Furrier's Drive

Just a Good Idea

Irish 51st State? Inevitable!

DUBLIN (AP)—A silver-haired furrier from Pittsburgh has kicked off a campaign to persuade Ireland to become the 51st American state.

"It's logical, and it's inevitable," says Hamilton Tanney, 54. "After all, there already are more Irishmen in America than there are Irishmen in Ireland."

Tanney said he has no personal stake in his design to annex the Emerald Isle. He just thinks it would be a good idea.

The population of Ireland is approximately 2,850,000. As

'Real Home in U.S. Why Not Admit It?'

Tanney pointed out, there are more Irishmen than that on U.S. city police forces.

"The real home of the Irish now," said Tanney, "is the United States. Why not admit it? Besides becoming the 51st state would be a good thing for the Irish from an economic standpoint.

"Take the Puerto Ricans. They are enjoying a better way of life living on unemployment compensation in New York than they can have with full employment on their little island."

"Why should Ireland, which has more people in America than it has at home, not be enjoying the same privileges?"

Tanney said the United States, in return for taking Ireland under its wing, might be ceded some of the barren lands on the west coast for use as a missile base.

Tanney said that when he first wrote to the Irish government about his plan, officials took evasive action.

They answered in Gaelic and it was months before he could get it translated.

Gale's Friends Worried

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Gale Storm's continued bad health is worrying her friends. Gale collapsed before a recent Garry Moore show she was supposed to appear on — but couldn't. She has not been well since the birth of her last child, but that was more than a year ago.

Screen Gems would like to corral Joan Crawford for a TV series. If the scripts are right, Joan could be interested in a going career when — if ever — his "Have Gun, Will Travel" series ends, will journey to Arizona in April to star in a feature film for Metro, "A Thunder of Drums," with new young star George Hamilton, and Luana Patten — the twosome of "Home from the Hills."

It was cute to see Dean Martin lunching at Metro with the 13-year-old girl who penned him a 120-page fan letter. Dean is starring in "Ada" with Anna Mayward. He plays the governor of a southern state. Susan is a prostitute. Dean falls in love with her and marries her. Strong stuff.

Jack Mahoney — remember him from the "Yancy Derringer" TV series? — will be seen as the heavy in an upcoming "Gunsmoke" segment. This new Charles Warren series is off to the races, following his "Rawhide" and "Gunsmoke" successes. Warren is one of the new millionaires hereabouts. Jack, by the way, signed with Revue and expects to have a new TV show.

The Elvis Presley $11,000 custom-built 1960 Cadillac that he turned in for a $20,000 Rolls-Royce can now be viewed in a Beverly Hills car showroom with a price tag of $5,500. So far, no takers. Closest bid has been from another singer, RCA Victor's Sam Cooke, who is willing to pay $5,000 for the Cadillac.

Joan Fontaine, having finished her "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea" movie, flew back to New York and, apart from her TV show, No. 1 on Joan's schedule is acting as chairman with socialite Mrs. William Woodward for the Tony awards that takes place at the Waldorf to benefit the American theatre wing.

I'm never going to call anyone plump again, not even myself. Not with Elizabeth Taylor winning that big sum from a London paper on that score, and Judy Garland's big suit last year for the same reason!

Work on Brigitte Bardot's current movie, "Only for Love," has slowed to a standstill because of a cold which caused Brig to lose her voice. The company had been supposed to go to the French Alps this week where B.B. was to have entered a bobbed race... Incidentally, the height problem is again bothering Brigitte. Her leading man, Michel Rubor, is on the short side and when they kiss standing up, Brigitte has to wear ballet slippers.

Bangalore Banner

Surge of Affection

'We Love Our Queen'

By MICHAEL WALL (Special to the Colonist)

BANGALORE — "We love our Queen" — the banner strung over the road into Bangalore so direct and simple, came as a shock.

It put into one short sentence, hung up for all to see, what had up to that moment been for us an impression gained from the massive crowds, the unrestrained joy and overwhelming friendliness of every city the Queen has visited in this tear of India.

But it was an impression not mentioned too loudly despite the fact that we have often been told "the simple people probably still think of her as their Queen."

Tuesday, at the Tata Institute of Science, a young graduate in engineering whose home is in Madras said, "You must not think of her as just your British Queen. She is Queen of the Commonwealth and so she is our Queen too."

This unsophisticated and uncomplicated definition of the Queen's position in republican India which is very widely held is in no way at odds with the great pride every Indian has in his independent and republican country.

The ties with Britain are still felt to be strong; and they are welcomed. Bangalore's reception of the Queen on her one-day visit has had about it an informality which however tiring it may have been for the royal visitors left them in no doubts of the affection they command.

At the institute of science their cars could barely squeeze through the ranks of students and others who put out their hands for Prince Philip to shake and all but knocked off his hat with their flags.

The Queen was treated with more care but later in Lal-bagh Comma Botanical Gardens which are Bangalore's pride the people lining the paths fell in behind her as she walked towards the glass-house so that it looked as if she were leading a great rally of citizens.

Expensive Land

Military Draft

Amish Canada-Bound

CANTON, Ohio (AP) —

Seven Amish families near here have purchased farms and are preparing to move to Canada because of high priced land and conflict with state school laws, social security and draft requirements.

Rudy S. Yoder of Navarre, an Amish member of the same church the families now attend, says the families are awaiting confirmation on immigration papers from Canadian authorities. He said they will leave late next month, or early in the summer.

Yoder said the families would join an Amish settlement of 18 families at Owen Sound, an Ontario community about 300 miles north of here. "The families are going primarily because land is getting scarce and prices for it are high here," he said. "But, the school conflict and problems with social security and military training also enter into it."

The Amish, a quaint, religious people who live the simple life without many of the modern conveniences, contend their children should not attend school beyond the eighth grade. To do so, they feel, would make the children worldly and corrupt their life. But Ohio has a compulsory education law for pupils up to 16 years of age.

"There are no high schools in Canada, except in large cities," Yoder said. "And a child can get out of school there at the age of 14 if he has good school grades."

Bank Bandit Downed

Girl's Timely Block Rewarded by $1,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 16-

year-old girl whose timely shoulder block resulted in the capture of a bank bandit has received a $1,000 reward from the Canadian Bankers Association.

The block 135-pound Judy Gaudin threw at 250-pound Al-bany George Conrad, 26, after he attempted to rob a downtown Imperial Bank Nov. 25 delayed the bandit enough to permit two bank employees to capture him.

Conrad is now serving a five-year prison sentence.

"I wasn't afraid," Judy says. "I knew he couldn't hurt me if I gave him a shoulder as he went by. Anyway, I'm used to standing my ground from playing grass hockey."

Judy was on the sidewalk on busy Hastings Street at 1:30 p.m. when she saw crowds part to make way for a running man. Then she heard someone say, "Stop that man."

Seconds later she knocked the fleeing man off balance.

Joe DiMaggio, a former outfielder, is trying on the old pinstripes for size, the flannel playsuit with the big Number 5 on the back which no Yankee has worn since 1951 and none but he shall ever wear again. After 10 years, Joe means to revisit St. Petersburg, Fla., soon and work out with the Yankees for a couple of weeks as "guest coach." Does memory stir? Well—

It was opening day in the Stadium, 1949, the Yankees' first game under the management of Charles Dillon Stengel. "Charley," said Grantland Rice, "you are the luckiest stuff that ever lived. You know why?" Casey didn't know.

"Because," Granny said, "if you had DiMag in centre field everybody would expect you to win the pennant with the humpty-dumpty. With him out, nobody expects anything and you can have a nice, quiet summer."

Not often before, and certainly never, did anybody leave Casey Stengel speechless. This time, and this time alone, he turned a silent, stricken gaze upon his old friend. It was a day that should have been the greatest in Stengel's 57 years up to then, but he sat in the dugout watching batting practice with the taste of ashes in his mouth. Joe D was in the hospital.

In November of 1948 doctors had removed a bone spur from Joe's right heel and pronounced the operation a success. What he probably was except that Joe couldn't walk in spring training. It was from St. Pete to Johns Hopkins where they told him the foot was just dandy. He went back to camp, couldn't play, and on opening day he was flat on his back while doctors strove to ease the pain of that "hot" heel.

Out to the surprise of most, the Yankees broke alertly without him, held first place through April and into May. First in the hospital and later in his hotel room, Joe rooted and rejoiced, yet sometimes he was near despair. Nothing, it seemed, could relieve the pain in the heel.

It was mid-May when he stepped out of bed and found he could walk. He was still in the hospital on May 23, he was able to take batting practice, catch a few fun games. On June 27 he played nine innings in a charity game against the Giants. The next day the Yankees opened a three-game series in Boston. The Red Sox, pennant favorites from the start, were making their big move, eating up the Yankees' lead.

DiMaggio wasn't on the train with the others but he caught an afternoon plane and was in Fenway Park in time for the eighth game. He had missed the first 65 games of the season.

On his first time at bat he singled, Johnny Lindell walked, and Hank Bauer hit a home run for a lead of 3 to 0. On his second, he drove one over the left field fence with Phil Rizzuto on base. Then he grounded out, walked, raced to second on a grounder by Yogi Berra, and beat the double play by the simple expedient of knocking Junior Stephens into left field.

Boston came back swinging in the second game, got a lead of 7 to 1. In the fifth inning, DiMaggio blasted one for three runs. The Yankees went on to tie the score. It was still tied when Joe came up in the eighth, two out, nobody on base. Earl Johnson pitched, and Joe's second home run of the day went whistling out of sight, for the ball game.

In the third game Vic Raschi carried a lead of 3 to 1 through seven innings but it was rough going. The Sox were beginning to get to him and there would be no help from the bullpen, who had relieved in both of the earlier games. DiMaggio went to bat in the eighth with two outs. Strieff and Tommy Heinrich bailed. With Mel Parnell pitching, the count went to three balls, two strikes. Then the ball bounced high against a light stand in left. Final score: Yankees 6, Red Sox 3.

Two years later Joe packed it up. Nobody invited him out, but the years and the accumulated injuries were getting to him and if he had stayed it wouldn't have been the real DiMaggio in centre field. "Baseball isn't fun any more," he said, taking his leave.

He was back another year for the annual Old Timers game. At a party that night, Casey made a speech; the recording is the closest thing to an heirloom we have in our house.

"We had Mr. DiMaggio," the unforgettable voice goes "that walked out there today and when I tell you that DiMaggio with the cheers he received everyone of 'em doesn't been given by myself and I shoulda yelled all winter during my off-season because of the success that the club had with him at the bat and the wonderful catches that he made in the outfield."

LONDON (AP)—A man who can't read or write Tuesday won $58,800 in the British soccer pool.

He is 57-year-old Bill Pratt of London, who left school at the age of 13.

"I cannot even write my name," Bill said. "My wife, Nora, has to fill in my address on the pool coupon."

"Names of football teams are the only ones I can read."

Pratt won his tax-free fortune for picking eight tie matches. He bet 70 cents on the coupon.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a surprise move Tuesday, a federal judge revoked bail for under world boxing boss Frankie Carbo and three of his four co-defendants in a conspiracy-extortion trial.

Judge Ernest Tolin approved a request by special prosecutor Alvin Goldstein to send the men to jail for the duration of their trial.

Ordered into custody in addition to Carbo were Frank (Blinky) Palermo, Philadelphia fight promoter; and Jose Sica and Louis Tom Dragna, Los Angeles gambling fix-ures.

Truman Gibson Jr. of Chicago, president of National Boxing Enterprises Inc., was permitted to remain at liberty on $5,000 bond.

The five were alleged to have tried to muscle in on the purses of former welterweight boxing champion Don Jordan.

By OSCAR FRALEY
MIAMI (UPI) — When Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead recently drew a gallery of 5,000 at $4 a head for an exhibition at Borton, it proved, according to pitch and putt promoter Fred Corcoran, that golf is ready for a major return to match play.

"Golf is a head-and-head game," Corcoran asserted.

That's what the public wants to see and the Palmer-Sneed matches prove that the fans are satisfied with medal play tournaments.

The time is ripe, Corcoran insists, for some city to stage a major match play championship.

Long golf's greatest "idea man," Corcoran thinks that the game could benefit greatly from an annual match between the U.S. open and PGA champion with that winner meeting the top open's professional in a head-to-head match on a par three course.

He also sides with the immortal Bobby Jones in a lie that the U.S. Golf Association should give deep thought to bringing back the stymied.

Ever take notes at a hockey game? Last night they might have read like this:

First period—Macauley hit post at 4:00; Cougars pressure during penalty to Anderson, Ford close. Macauley de-slotted pass from Hay at 6:15, slid shot past open corner; Anderson had chance in front and Ross put Saunders in for good chance after Popelin's goal.

Third period—Ross set up Saunders at 5:30 but Evans got piece of shot; Moro had shot at 1:00, Evans dominated sitting for shot; Fizzell couldn't get rebound.

ALL THIS HAPPENED

All of that, and more, happened last night at Memorial Arena as the Victoria Cougars wasted perhaps a dozen scoring chances in losing in overtime to Vancouver Canucks, 2-1, in a Western Hockey League game played before about 2,750 fans, including the "Navy Night."

It was a frustrating loss for the Cougars, who should have ended their longest losing streak of the season at five games. They got the Canucks on a night they were ripe for plucking, had their bird cornered, and then let him slip away on a slip.

About the only consolation when it was all over was the news that Calgary Stampede's had proved friends in need by keeping Edmonton six points back with an easy win at Calgary.

After a jittery start, the Cougars could have almost put it away in the first period. But Macauley and Saunders found the piping instead of the nets and they couldn't take advantage of the three Vancouver penalties.

Then, in the second period on the return rush after Saunders had just missed, Larry Popein put the Canucks ahead. Jim Hay blocked a shot by Danny Belisle but the puck got loose and Popein fired over the sliding Marcel Pelletier from the left side.

It wasn't until four minutes from time that the Cougars managed to get the puck past the very good Claude Evans. CAME ON

Gerry Goyer forced the overtime, flipping quickly into the open side after the puck came out from behind the net following Hay's hard shot from inside the blue line.

WASTED EFFORT
Then they made it a wasted effort after only 73 seconds of extra time as Pelletier, who escaped narrowly three, on four times previously when he came far out of his nets to clear, made a stop, skated out and passed the puck directly to Larry Cohen.

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Western race track announcer Joe Hernandez had called 1944 consecutive races at Santa Anita Park, dating back to the day the track opened Dec. 25, 1934, going into Tuesday's program.

VANCOUVER CPJ—President Bill Fidler of the Pacific Coast Soccer League said Monday night two B.C. sportsmen have offered to back a proposed visit to Vancouver by the famed Spanish team Real Madrid to the extent of $2,000.

Fidler declined to identify the pair.

He also said no action would be taken on the offer until further information was obtained from Los Angeles regarding Real Madrid's visit.

The visit of the Spanish team and 11 other top pro clubs from 10 different countries was scheduled Sunday for a conference in Fresno, Calif., attended by representatives from Los Angeles, San Francisco, Mexico City and Vancouver.

British amateur he laid Tolley a stytle and took the title."

had Sarasota in 1926. It's that head-and-head drama which draws them."

The PGA switched its match play championship to medal play a few years back on the grounds that unknowns who reached the finals didn't draw flies. Smaller fields and longer matches would eliminate such incidents as Boston Irishman Fred Hunter's 19th hole charge for the gold bug in an eager for match play today that he'd probably patronize even a dark horse finale.

"The way they flocked to see Sned and Palmer is a case in point," he said.

And, speaking of that match just before it started Palmer took an appreciative glance at the gallery and said in an aside to Sned:

"Sam, this is a tremendous crowd."

That practical Sned looked them over as if counting every one and replied with peculiar hopefulness:

"It is if they all paid."

United Health Board Reality Today

A metropolitan health board for the whole southern end of Vancouver Island probably will be created today.

City council yesterday authorized signing of an agreement today to set up such a board, and was told that other participants appeared ready to go ahead.

The agreement will be the result of years of sporadic efforts and months of intensive negotiations, behind closed doors, among provincial, municipal and school board representatives.

It will bring together three public health resources of the provincially administered Saanich and South Vancouver Island Health Unit, the Victoria-Esquamalt health department and the Oak Bay health department, and will augment them at no additional cost to the participants because the unified service will be eligible for an extra $42,000 in federal grants.

"We will have better service at the same or less cost," said Mr. H. Mooney, said. In Victoria city's case, the cost is expected to be about $20,000 a year less at the outset.

Staffs of the present health services, covering the area from Sooke to Salt Spring, will remain almost entirely in their present positions, he said. Mrs. Lily Wilson said, but several new appointments will be made, including a senior medical health officer and a medical examiner; basic services will be standardized over the whole area, and all resources could be used when needed by the metropolitan board.

The board will include one representative each from city council, Esquamalt council, Oak Bay council, Greater Victoria school board and the Saanich and South Vancouver Island board.

According to a distribution worked out chiefly by City Manager C. C. Wyatt, Victoria will pay $69,606 of a $297,867 budget exclusive of the federal contribution; Esquamalt, $9,382; Oak Bay, $11,256; school board, $58,144, and the Saanich and South Vancouver Island unit, $155,884.

Queens Travel First Class

Queen Victoria will travel as a first-class passenger over the polar route from London to Vancouver, Feb. 28, on the first leg of a journey to Victoria's new wax museum in the Crystal Garden. Keith Gens, managing director of Josephine Tussaud's waxworks in London, prepares the monarch for her trip.

Preparation For Rain Pays Off

Heavy rainfall of the last two days has not produced "anything like the difficulty Victoria city would have had four or five years ago," city engineer James Garrett said yesterday.

A systematic program of investigation, improvement and cleaning in recent years, he said "has really paid off."

Theatre On Rails

Theatre on rails of the Canadian Forestry Association opened a week-long engagement at the E & N Railway yards near Victoria West Park yesterday.

Public showings of films dealing with forest conservation, including wild life management, forestry and forest fire prevention will take place at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. each night with the final showings on Saturday evening.

Ancient muzzle-loading flintlock guns found yesterday at city hall get close examination from civic employees

Old Muzzle-Loaders Found at City Hall

Imagination was stirred yesterday by discovery of two old muzzle-loading flintlock guns between inner and outer walls of an attic at city hall.

The guns were discovered by chief carpenter Bard Wheatcroft, tracking down a leak in the eaves.

How they got there was anyone's guess. Provincial archivist Willard Ireland suggested that they might, at some time long ago, have been seized by police and stored there—perhaps before the inner wall was boarded up.

This suggestion gained some support from the recollection of City Clerk M. Frank Hunter that about 30 years ago, a box of eight or nine revolvers was found in the attic in the north west corner of the building, above what once was the city jail.

One of the guns found yesterday was long-barreled, with a bore of five-eighths of an inch, marked "Twist."

The other appeared to be an army musket, with a short barrel and a three-quarter-inch bore. The stock was stamped G. F. F. 1863. The metal work had a date that appeared to be 1862, and also was stamped, "Imperial de Chate-

Nerve Not Needed

'Stir Up Debate' Gillie's Only Aim

B. C. Gillie, principal of S. J. Willis Junior High School, said there is a widely held misconception that it took "exceptional courage and nerve" to speak out on the Chant report on education.

He said many people have raised the point since he was quoted in local newspapers as being critical of the lack of informed debate on the royal commission report by officials within the B.C. educational system.

"I make no apologies for anything that was said on that occasion," Mr. Gillie told S. J. Willis PTA last night. "But I would be sorry to end up as one labelled 'opposed un- equivocally' to all the recommendations contained in that very comprehensive report."

Mr. Gillie said "by actual count" he had determined he could support 140 of the 158 Chant recommendations, though he felt compelled to add some he opposed were among the most significant in the report.

His only aim in speaking out on the report was to "stir up" some public debate, said Mr. Gillie. "To some extent I have been successful," he added. "All you have to do is get onto a bus with a Chant report and before you sit down you're in an argument."

Greater Victoria

Probe Merger Right Now—Skillings

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Waldo Skillings (SC—Victoria) last night called upon the provincial government to immediately strike a special committee to delve fully into the question of amalgamation of Greater Victoria municipalities.

He said he did not agree with fellow member Donald Smith that it should be done "by bribing with a grant."

"This approach to amalgamation should be done in the best interest of all citizens," he said.

15 PER CENT

He observed that 15 per cent of Victoria's assessment roll was comprised of non-taxable government buildings. "It is not fair to Victoria to have 15 per cent of its assessments free and to have to provide all the services for government buildings, when other municipalities derive as much benefit from having the government offices here," he said. He said the city of Victoria has nothing to gain from amalgamation in a pecuniary way. Victoria has all the services already installed he pointed out, and "by 1975, if Victoria continues its pay as you go policies, it will be debt free... But, other municipalities... Oak Bay is loaded with debt... Saanich is a disgrace as far as public services."

It was Mr. Skillings' maiden speech in the legislature and he spoke out strongly for Victoria projects.

● He said Victoria must receive some kind of consideration above and beyond that of the Capital Improvement District Commission because of the value of tax-free properties.

● Called upon the government to take immediate action to remedy the parking problem around the legislative buildings.

● Called upon Recreation Minister Earle Westwood to start now and set aside certain lakes and streams for fly fishing only.

● Said that unless the provincial government helps out, the Victoria 1963 centenary will be a fiasco.

He asked the government to provide a matching grant for Victoria to build a senior citizens' headquarters as a centenary project... a recreation centre... some place senior citizens can go as a meeting place."

He said all Victoria has done for its centenary is set up a "non-functioning committee..." a committee on paper only.

MEASURING THE MEN:

We picked up some more incidental intelligence about the three candidates so far chosen for the Esquamalt-Saanich federal by-election yesterday. Here it is... the New Party's Glen Hamilton lives but two doors away from the Conservatives' George Chatterton... Mr. Hamilton was born in Roblin, Manitoba; the Liberals' David Groos in Milwaukee, and Mr. Chatterton in South Africa...

Fighting for the seat formerly held by Maj.-Gen. George E. Peckham, VC—Canada's defence minister before becoming Lieutenant-governor—are three candidates, each of whom served in a different branch of the service: Mr. Hamilton the army, Mr. Groos the navy, and Mr. Chatterton the RCAF...

The latter two men are both "unemployed."

THE HEART OF THE MATTER:

Members of the legislature were each given a sackful of spuds yesterday, the compliments of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board. Miss Minister Kenneth Klerasa, a former minister of agriculture, was a little more suspicious than most. Pulling out his pocket-knife he neatly sliced three of the tubers and closely examined them before pronouncing them "OK."

THE OTHER SIDE: There is so much talk these days of the "irresponsibility" of the daily press that it would be well to consider the reverse side of the coin.

On Dec. 3 last this column said George I. Warren, likeable Mr. Victoria, would retire early this year as head of the Victoria Automobile Club and would be succeeded by Cmdr. John Leeming.

That's not true screamed officials. You're completely wet, there's no truth to such a report.

and said we were wrong. Now we wish we hadn't. What happened this—? An announcement was made that Mr. Warren will retire March 1 and will be replaced by Mr. Leeming.

A newspaper is in business to report news. It seems that if it does so it is in danger of being labelled irresponsible.

MR. WONDERFUL: The legislative press gallery yesterday was the guest of one of its most illustrious members—former B.C. lieutenant-governor Frank M. Ross.

Mr. Ross, who retired from his post as the Queen's representative in B.C. last year, prizes the honorary membership in the gallery, an honor bestowed on him in 1958.

Before returning to Vancouver he made this comment: "A grave responsibility rests on the members of the press gallery, in that they are responsible for interpreting, through their newspapers and radio stations, the activities and business of the legislature.

"And it is their duty to clearly interpret the actions of the government in power, and equally so, the opinions and criticisms of the opposition, so that at all times the public of B.C. can feel they are fully informed."

"Whatever their personal opinion might be, they must all interpret the facts as they are."

There are two other honorary lifetime members of the press gallery—former Liberal premier Byron ("Boss") Johnson and long-time independent MLA Tom Uphill of Fernie.

CLEAN UP, PAINT UP:

Treatment of City Chinese

Shocked MLA Urges Police Action Probe

By PETER BRUTON

A Victoria MLA last night said he was "surprised and shocked" by Victoria city police treatment of a Chinese motorist involved in a minor collision earlier this month.

Waldo Skillings (SC—Victoria) asked for an investigation of the incident in which Low Suit Yew was arrested, spent six hours in city jail and was finally released on $1,000 bail on a careless driving charge.

NO ONE ELSE

He said he had never heard of anyone else being arrested on such a charge in his 54 years in Victoria.

He read a letter from Harry Lou Poy, secretary of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Society, outlining the circumstances of the case. Copies of the letter have been sent to Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock and the Victoria Police Commission.

DRIVING CAR

Low Suit Yew, an employee of the B.C. government ferries at Swartz Bay, was driving his car to work with three other employees about 1:30 p.m. Feb. 4 when he was involved in a collision with another car at Hillside and Douglas.

Damage to Mr. Low's car was $18 and the other, $87.

No one was injured and the collision was a minor one.

END RESULT

"Upon the collision happening a police constable of the city police came to the scene and the end result was that Low Suit Yew was arrested, taken to the city police station and charged with driving without due care and attention," stated the letter.

"There is evidence that Low

LOW SUIT YEW ... not abusive

Suit Yew was not abusive or obstructive to the police officer concerned... Having regard to the minor nature of the accident there would appear to have been no justification for an arrest being made."

RECALL CASE

Mr. Lou Poy stated that he had been unable to find anyone who could recall a case where a person accused of careless driving had been arrested.

"The fact that an arrest was made in this case, where a Chinese was involved, leads us to conclude that he was discriminated against because of his race," stated the letter.

Mr. Low was taken to the police station and put in jail, where he remained six hours before bail was arranged. He was required to raise $1,000 bail, pay lawyer's fees of $75 to have bail arranged, and was refused permission to drive his car.

"In addition to suffering the humiliation of being placed in the city jail for this period, he also lost a day's pay and, in fact, until the full facts were put before his superior, he almost lost his job for not showing up to work," said the letter.

WARRANTED

"While we do not concur with those who continually criticize the actions of the police, we do feel that this is a case where criticism is both warranted and justified," continued the letter from Mr. Lou Poy.

He asked Attorney-General Bonner, Chief Blackstock and the police commission to conduct "a full investigation" and "if it is found, as we suspect it will be found, that the man in question was falsely arrested without just cause or reason," appropriate disciplinary action should be taken to prevent further actions by city police officers.

FULL RESTITUTION

"We further feel that full restitution should be made in that court records of arrest be stricken out and also full financial reimbursements should be made for all out-of-pocket expenses caused by this unfortunate and serious mistake on the part of our local law enforcement officer," stated the letter.

Mr. Low, who lives at 1159 North Park, was fined $45 in police court Feb. 6 on a charge of careless driving.

NO PRIOR RECORD

Because he had no prior record, and because it was said on his behalf that his work required him to get to the B.C. ferries at Swartz Bay very early his driver's licence was not suspended.

He was arrested at the accident scene, by Const. A. V. Harwood, city police traffic division.

NOTHING TO SAY

Chief Const. John Blackstock said yesterday that he had nothing to say of the case, other than that he was preparing a full report for the attorney-general's department. Const. Harwood also had no comment.

Mr. Skillings told the legislature that the attorney-general should investigate the city police action and that if it was found the man had been falsely arrested some disciplinary action should be taken against the officer concerned.

Compensation should also be paid Mr. Low, he said.

IS ONE FACE CREAM "JUST AS GOOD" AS ANOTHER?

True, lots of creams are similar in doing a surface job only. But if your need is for a treatment cream that will effectively halt early-aging signs such as crow's feet, little lines, blemishes, then POND'S DAY SKIN CREAM is the answer. This famous cream, now with Allantoin, goes to work in just 10 minutes to repair skin robbed of natural moisture. Allantoin floats off lifeless surface skin cells... speeds penetration of Pond's rich moisturized lanolin to thirsty tissues far below. Almost overnight, skin dried out by harsh weather, indoor heat, low fat diets, regains its softness, smoothness... looks young again! Use POND'S DAY SKIN CREAM regularly. In jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold.

Your Problems By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a gal who is 5 feet 8 inches tall in stocking feet. Of course a girl can't go anywhere in stocking feet so I'm 5 feet 10 inches tall in shoes.

When I go to a party where there is dance music a certain little runt always manages to seek me out. He's an excellent dancer but he's about two heads shorter than I am and he nestles his head on my bosom when we dance.

The other night we won the first prize and I didn't even realize we were in a contest. I suspect we won not because we were such good dancers but because we were so funny-looking.

Please tell me what to do the next time this shrimp asks me to dance. Now that we're a "prize-winning team" I may be stuck forever.

LONG SAL

Dear Sal: Where's your sense of humor, gal? No one ever laughs at people who are smart enough to laugh at themselves. While you're dancing with the runt keep an eye peeled for a basketball player.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl, 17, who is very mixed up about my feelings toward my mother.

I'm very fond of a fellow who goes to college in the east. We've gone together two years—the last year steady. His letters are beautiful. Sometimes he writes me poetry. Of course it's all very romantic and personal—intended for my eyes only.

I learned today that my mother read my letters and the poetry to her bridge club when they met at our house last week. I was heart sick.

When I asked her for an explanation Mother said she thought the letters were so wonderful she wanted to share them with others. I never knew until now that she read my mail. What shall I say to her? I haven't been able to think straight enough to say anything yet—DISAPPOINTED

Dear Disappointed: The poetry was not intended for your mother and she had no right to see it, much less share it with others.

She was, of course, showing you off to her lady friends so please try to temper your judgment with a little mercy. Tell her you are deeply disappointed that she would help herself to your mail and you

Advice to CPR

Stop Crying Ferry Blues

The CPR should stop crying the blues about its Vancouver to Nanaimo ferry run and do something about turning Forbidden Plateau lands over to provincial recreation department for development as a winter playground.

That was the message Dan Campbell (SC—Comox) gave in the legislature yesterday.

He said, that because the CPR owed so much to Vancouver Island for its E & N land belt grant—"one of the greatest travesties of justice ever perpetrated on the people of B.C."—the CPR should do some soul-searching with a view to negotiating a turnover of Forbidden Plateau lands to become part of Strathcona Park.

He said the government is now negotiating with the CPR for these lands.

DEATH OF PAST

Mr. Campbell said he didn't believe deals of the past, such as the E & N land grant, "are conclusive today."

He thought that if the Forbidden Plateau were included in Strathcona Park, a winter playground would be developed which would attract Vancouver holidaymakers, who would use the CPR ferries.

"If the CPR hangs tough in these negotiations, I for one am going to sound off," he warned.

MORE THOUGHT

Mr. Campbell called for more thought in terms of production of salmon, rather than regulation.

He said that the real loss through floods on Vancouver Island this year was in fish on the spawning beds, rather than to property.

He said he liked the philosophy of a new Campbell

River organization — Salmon Unlimited — which is composed of all groups interested in fishing and aims at improvement of spawning rivers, rather than regulation of catch limits.

MORE INTERESTED

Mr. Campbell said he was more interested in the preventive services angle for juvenile delinquency problems, than the idea of a psychiatric couch behind every youngster.

He told of the Courtenay activities under the provincial community programs branch and said activities were directed by 45 volunteer leaders.

On his favorite subject — North Vancouver Island transportation — Mr. Campbell was critical of the competition between the original Murray Marine Services Ltd. and Northwest Shipping, a subsidiary of Northland Navigation, for a Kelsey Bay to Port Moberly service.

NORTH COAST

"You can't service the north coast of Vancouver Island out of Vancouver," he said with obvious reference to Northwest Shipping which has a Vancouver office.

He asked the provincial government to protest to Ottawa the subsidy paid to Northland Navigation for operation of a north Island service, which is provided by a boat operating from Vancouver.

Floods Force Rescue

RCMP Const. Larry Boan with Game Warden William Fowkes fought their way through waist-high flood waters yesterday to get Mrs. Margaret Joseph and daughter Jean, 6, who were stranded in this home near the Kokslah River. Mrs. Joseph was rescued from her home in a state of shock during last month's flood. (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Lakeside Gallop

Horseman Edgelow Halts Riding Permits

Horseman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow yesterday galloped into battle and saved riders from having to have revocable permits to ride at Beaver and Elk Lakes, or perhaps from being fined for riding where they shouldn't.

City parks administrator W. H. Warren suggested a permit system, telling Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee that riders were paying no attention to signs forbidding use of beaches and grass-seeded areas.

"OR ELSE" BANISH

But Ald. Edgelow successfully argued the committee should only write to all riding clubs, seeking co-operation on an "or else" basis.

When Ald. M. H. Mooney suggested asking Saanich to pass a bylaw prohibiting riding in some areas, Ald. Edgelow protested: "Gee, once you start bylaws on poor old Dobbin... you'll find it would drive a lot of youngsters onto the highway, scared to go near parks."

The committee also:

- Postponed, until it receives a detailed report, further consideration of a suggestion that a parking fee be charged in some Beaver Lake-Elk Lakes parking areas, to raise funds for park development.
- Tentatively decided to tour parks under its administration March 22 before definitely deciding how to spend its $20,000 budget.
- Asked Victoria to reconsider.

Was Desperate

Needy Robber Returns Cash

MIAMI (AP)—A robber who took $4,577 at gunpoint from a savings and loan association office Monday returned Tuesday and gave the money back.

The man, identified by the FBI as Eugene John Snyder, 33, strolled calmly into the office.

'Add Fluorides Without Vote'

TORONTO (CP)—Three members of the royal commission on fluoridation have recommended unanimously that Ontario enact legislation empowering municipalities to fluoridate their water supplies by bylaw "without the necessity" of a referendum.

He walked past the tellers and handed the money to the manager, John O'Keefe.

"This is the money I stole," he said, handing over a brown paper bag. Then he began to cry.

Snyder sat down and Snyder called the police. Officers said Snyder had spent only $20 of the money.

"I needed money for groceries and medical bills," Snyder said. "I was desperate."

"I only needed $300; when I looked in the bag and saw all that money I was shocked. I stayed awake all night thinking about it. I told my wife about it and then decided to bring the money back."

He said the gun he used in the robbery wasn't loaded.

Funeral Today

Diefenbaker Home For Rites

SASKATOON (CP)—Funeral service for Mrs. Mary Florence Diefenbaker, mother of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, will be held this afternoon in First Baptist Church here.

Mrs. Diefenbaker, 88, died Monday night after a long illness.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker arrived from Ottawa last night aboard a department of transport Viscount. He was met by relatives, Mayor Sid Buckwold of Saskatoon and Progressive Conservative party officials.

In Ottawa, as all sides expressed sympathy, Harold Winch (CCP—Vancouver East) suggested the Commons not sit Wednesday, but Howard Green said it was Mr. Diefenbaker's wish that it carry on business.

REGINA (CP)—The case against Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher was in the hands of a 12-man jury Tuesday after Mr. Justice D. C. Barry delivered his charge on three counts of counselling perjury.

Can your truck pass this test?

The real test of a truck is not how much it can carry, but how little. Could you afford to deliver a hundred, twenty or even ten pounds? Or would operating costs eat up the profit?

The curious thing about Volkswagen Trucks is that they not only make large loads practical, they make small loads profitable.

This is one reason why you're seeing so many Volkswagen Trucks around. Owners know a VW does its job at half the cost of standard half-tons. Half the gas, half the oil, half the tire wear. Even the smallest delivery makes sense.

Aren't most of your deliveries under full capacity? If they are, you ought to look into the VW operating story. But if you carry heavy loads over bad roads in all kinds of weather, there's something else you should know about Volkswagen. The new VW engine gives you 10% more acceleration and passing power. The new heavy-duty transmission (that will stand up to almost any abuse) has new gear ratios selected to deliver every ounce of the extra engine power to the driving wheels. (You get better performance with the same gas economy.)

Whatever you're delivering it's easier to unload from the double side doors and rear door. And it's easier to park. The VW is three feet shorter than standard trucks.

If you like the idea of paying less for more deliveries, talk to your authorized Volkswagen dealer about it.

Forged-Cheque Passer Jailed for One Year

Eight concurrent sentences of one year each were handed down by Magistrate William Oester yesterday to a 21-year-old Vancouver woman who had admitted passing forged cheques in Victoria and Saanich, and attempting to pass another at Duncan.

The accused, Maureen Misaen, had only been out of jail a month when she was arrested on this series of charges.

Court had been told the cheques were among $4 which had been stolen at the beginning of February in Vancouver. Her "spree" on the island took place Feb. 3 and 4, and netted her at least $692.30.

Court ordered that $293.24 recovered from accused be divided proportionately among supermarkets and the Bank of Montreal, which cashed the cheques.

Seven of the charges, including that from Duncan, were dealt with in city court; the eighth in Saanich court.

Suspended sentence, under bond of $500 for one year, was handed down in city court to Howard Duffon, on a charge of gross indecency.

Transferred from juvenile to open court, Keith Mullaly, 17, of 1842 Montclair, pleaded guilty yesterday in Saanich court to breaking, entering and theft early Monday at the Trans-Canada Service Station, 480 Burnside West, and Saanich Service Station, 3351 Douglas.

Police said accused and two others broke into the stations and took $16.80 from a cigarette machine in one and $35 from

Tree Trial Plan Urged in Saanich

A new scheme for planting boulevard trees in Saanich will be adopted on a trial basis, if municipal council accepts a recommendation from parks and recreation committee.

The plan, aimed at certain streets which are paved and have curbs, calls for trees at an estimated cost to the property owner of $4 a year for each lot on which a tree is placed.

Committee also recommended: Council accept a suggestion by J. W. Neill, associate professor in the division of plant science at UBC, for planting of short hawthorne trees along the Shelbourne Street road allowance, with a view to providing eventually a median strip of taller-growing trees.

Council seek authority from city council to clear brush and grade a boat-launching facility at the northern end of city-owned property at Elk Lake, off Brookleigh Road, and that council transfer for this project funds originally earmarked for beautification of the waterfront along Gorge Road.

School Area Division Irks PTA

Closing of Fifth Street where it divides a playing field from the Quadra Street elementary school grounds was urged this week by Quadra Parent-Teacher Association—but perhaps too late.

The city already has finished installing curbs and gutters on both sides of the road in that block, and the roadway has been prepared for new black-topping.

The PTA wrote to council objecting to paving of the road and suggesting elimination of the portion between the school grounds and the playing field.

"In this way," it said, "the present improvements will serve the property owners concerned and avoid the dangerous road traffic through the school area."

More than half the world's 2,900,000,000 people live in the economically underdeveloped areas of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Swan Lake

Another Failure On Vote

Saanich Coun. Leslie Passmore failed again this week in his latest attempt to have ratepayers vote on the proposed civic centre near Swan Lake.

But he gained one ally—Coun. Joseph Casey, who was not a member of council when the civic centre was first proposed some nine months ago.

Coun. Passmore has consistently opposed the scheme and has tried a number of times to have ratepayers asked if they are in favor of the scheme.

Reeve George Chatterton, leading proponent of the plan has just as consistently resisted Coun. Passmore's efforts. His stand is that council does not need to seek approval of ratepayers for the construction of any buildings except a new municipal hall.

Buildings planned for sites between Swan Lake and Douglas Street include a joint fire-police headquarters building, a joint health and welfare building, and a new municipal hall.

COUNCIL AGREE
Coun. Passmore tried to have council agree to ask ratepayers: "Are you in favor of borrowing $250,000 to purchase acreage and build a joint fire-hall and police station in a proposed civic centre to be bounded by Douglas Street, Haynes Road, the CN railroad and Swan Lake?"

Show Business

By Dick Williams

Jack Lemmon, vying for an Oscar for his role in "The Apartment," remembers when he was trying to get a toe hold in Hollywood only a few short years ago. Signed by Columbia, he was called for his first appointment with the studio's chief executive, the late Harry Cohn.

No man for small talk, Cohn brusquely opened the subject.

"I don't like your name. It gives those critics too much of a handle if you're in a flop," Lemmon, proud of the family name, played it cautious and said nothing. Cohn continued: "How about Jack Lemmon?"

Jack gave the suggestion deep thought, then asked with deliberate innocence: "Wasn't Lenin the Russian communist leader?"

Cohn glared at him suspiciously for what seemed hours while Jack held his breath. "Then," reports Jack, "he changed the subject and never brought it up again."

Drug Cost Probe Urged by Alberta

EDMONTON (UPI)—The Alberta legislature Tuesday agreed to ask the federal government to look into the cost of drugs. Members agreed to ask the government to examine the cost of drug manufacturing and marketing, to determine if retail prices are fair and reasonable.

Twin Moons Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP)—A pair of satellites launched from Cape Canaveral on a single booster rocket are in orbit, the defence department announced early today.

The doubleheader rocket carries the U.S. Navy's Transit III-B satellite and a smaller hitchhiking vehicle.

SEVERAL REPORTS

The brief announcement by the defence department said reports received from various tracking stations showed the satellites were in orbit.

The main satellite, a 250-pound vehicle, is another step toward development of a system to improve navigation for ships, submarines and airplanes.

TESTS FOR RADIO

The smaller "piggyback" vehicle, 34 pounds, is to be used for radio communications experiments.

The satellites were aimed toward orbits about 500 miles above earth to cross the equator and travel as far north as Cape Canaveral and as far south as Johannesburg.

NEW BOMBARDMENT

It was the latest shot in America's heaviest bombardment of space. Within the past six days, the U.S. has orbited three other satellites. (See earlier story, page 3.)

Mud Buries Farmer In Hen House

MISSION, B.C. (CP)—Rescue workers continued through a windy night Tuesday, attempting to reach a 32-year-old farmer buried alive in a chicken house beneath a 250-foot mudslide.

Police said there was "little hope" Wolfgang Fischer was still alive. He was buried as he fed his hens at mid-afternoon at his farm 15 miles from here.

Train Ditched 43 Injured

BUFFALO, N.D. (UPI)—Eleven cars of the speeding Northern Pacific train jumped from their tracks into a ditch today and 43 of the 51 passengers aboard were injured.

The 13-car Chicago-to-Seattle train was travelling at an estimated 80 miles per hour when its two diesel units, two baggage cars, and five passenger cars, and four other cars left the tracks.

Britain Wants China To Be Seated in UN

LONDON (AP)—Britain will try to convince the U.S. that world disarmament can be advanced if Red China is seated in the UN, it was learned authoritatively Tuesday.

This will form a major British argument when Prime Minister Macmillan meets President Kennedy in Washington early in April.

But informants added there is no intention to exert heavy pressure to get the U.S. to change its policy toward Peking.

NO UNION CHECK-OFF DUES MAY BE GIVEN NEW PARTY

New B.C. Labor Legislation Introduced Last Evening

By PETER BRUTON

B.C. unions will be forbidden to contribute to the New Party through dues check-offs.

New labor legislation, introduced by Labor Minister Leslie R. Peterson last night, prohibits the payment of any money collected by an employer from a union member's salary to a political organization.

All unions will have to make a statutory declaration stating that no money collected by the check-off system will be contributed, either directly or indirectly, to a political organization or a candidate seeking political office.

NOTHING TO STOP

There is nothing to stop individual unionists from contributing to the party of their choice on a voluntary, individual basis.

The new provision was one of 40 amendments to the Labor Relations Act.

CCF spokesmen immediately termed the move "class warfare."

Among other provisions of the new labor code were:

- All B.C. unions must make available an annual financial statement.
- A judge may no longer cancel a union's certification or the check-off of dues system if he decides a strike is illegal.
- It is more difficult for employers to "lockout" a union.
- A conciliation officer has power to recommend that a conciliation board not be appointed.
- Procedure set up to bring quick settlement of grievances raised by union members.

There was no mention of a right-to-work law, frequently speculated upon since Mr. Peterson announced that new labor legislation would be introduced some three weeks ago.

SOME UNIONS

The move against union contributions to political parties has apparently been brought about by the decision of some unions to make contributions to the New Party which will be officially formed later this year by merging the CCF, labor and farmer groups in Canada.

Under the present provisions of the Labor Relations Act an employer is compelled to check-off union dues from an employee's wages. This provision will remain in force except where any part of the dues is contributed to a political party.

NEW PROVISIONS

The new provisions read: "No employer and no one acting on behalf of an employer shall refuse to employ or to continue to employ a person and no one shall discriminate against a person in regard to employment only because that person refuses to make a contribution or expenditure to or on behalf of a candidate for political office."

ANY MONEYS

"No trade union and no person acting on behalf of a trade union shall directly or indirectly contribute to or expend on behalf of any political party or to or on behalf of any candidate for political office any moneys deducted from an employee's wages... or paid as a condition of membership in the trade union."

"Remuneration of a member of a trade union for his services in an official union position held by him while seeking election or upon being elected shall not be considered as a contribution or expenditure to or on behalf of a candidate for political office."

'Interference' Says Labor

New labor legislation introduced by the government yesterday seeks to control the internal affairs of labor unions, according to Victoria Labor Council president R. C. Barrie.

"This makes B.C. interference just as bad as that existing in Newfoundland," said Mr. Barrie.

He declared labor unions in B.C. had no fears of exposing their books "because organized labor in this province is more democratic than our Social Credit government."

The move to prevent use of any part of dues checked off by employers for either direct or indirect political action, said the VLC president, "shows Social Credit is afraid of the New Party."

Ald. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of VLC, termed the same dues check-off amendment "the first step towards government interference in free collective bargaining."

Bad for Everyone Legislature Told

It was a pity that Labor Minister Leslie Peterson had brought in new labor legislation, Cedric Cox (CCF—Burnaby) told the legislature last night.

"It's bad for labor, it's bad for the trade union movement, and it's bad for the whole province," he said.

"The hon. member cannot discuss the bill," ruled acting Mr. Speaker Alex Matthews.

"I'm not," said Mr. Cox. "I haven't even read the bill yet."

Luxton Becomes Lake

Headaches and troubles plagued residents of Luxton yesterday as flood waters lapped into homes and business establishments. Junction of Sooke highway, lower left, and Happy Valley Road, in heart of the settlement, are shown in photograph taken from Vancouver Island Helicopters aircraft by Colonist reporter Ted Harris.

Swimming in foot-deep water inside Happy Valley home of J. V. Alexander yesterday is this tame duck. Chesterfield was placed on table to keep it from soaking.

Many Ready To Flee Flood

Luxton district residents were ready to evacuate their homes yesterday as rains caused widespread flooding near Greater Victoria.

Nearly three inches of rain fell in the Luxton-Langford area between 5 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. yesterday, proving a major factor in flooding in the Luxton area, just off the Sooke-Happy Valley Road intersection, and in Dewdney Flats which were under a foot of water.

Bilston Creek spilled over its banks, swirled around homes and flooded roads in numerous places.

Water a foot deep flowed across the floors of a creek-side home at 958 Happy Valley, owned by J. V. Alexander. A tame duck swam contentedly about the living room, beneath tables and chairs stacked high with furniture.

Mrs. O. M. Finney, Cogan Road, whose home was surrounded by water, said it was "waist-deep in the basement but didn't harm the furnace which is suspended from the basement ceiling. We've lived here 16 years and we know how to cope with it."

She said she kept her children, Robin, 10, and Dianne, 8, home from school because flooded roadside ditches were so dangerous.

The family left its car parked on Luxton Road, "a five-minute walk in gumboots from the house."

MEANIES TO BOOT

Mrs. Allen Barnett, 3243 Happy Valley, whose home was surrounded by water, stuck her head out the front door to shout: "Six more inches and it'll be coming in the back door."

She said she didn't know how her husband was going to get in when he comes home from work. "We've got the measles to boot. Everything happens to us," she said.

Mrs. Beverly Hughes, a clerk at Glen Lake Hardware, said:

"The old man came to fill the tank. But the cap was one inch under water so he tightened it and went away."

W. G. Smith, owner of the hardware store, said water came "within three inches" of flooding his furnace.

High winds following the heavy rain tore two 80-pound displays in the shape of paint cans from the roof of his store. One crashed to the ground and the other landed on some other part of the roof.

A number of students on their way home from Happy Valley Elementary School and Belmont Junior-Senior High School had to wade up to their knees through flooded low spots in the road.

CREWS BURY

In Victoria, 2.16 inches of rain fell during a 24-hour period ending at 4 p.m. yesterday. All municipal work crews were out clearing drains, culverts and catch-basins of rain-swept debris.

Bowker Creek, bogey of many past floods, was running deep and swift along its whole course yesterday, but stayed within its reinforced banks.

Some homes and a few business firms experienced basement flooding.

Rhodesia Proposal Angers Both Sides

LONDON (UPI)—Britain Tuesday proposed a new Northern Rhodesia constitution which it said slashed across racial lines and would provide for elections based on the candidate's personal qualities and not the color of his skin.

Almost immediately, federal prime minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland "unequivocally" rejected the proposed constitution and called up 3,000 white reservists to active duty tomorrow.

Welensky bitterly attacked the British plans to increase colored influence in the protectorate in a statement in the federal capital of Salisbury in Southern Rhodesia.

Spokesmen for extremist elements among the 2.5 million blacks in the central African protectorate also denounced the proposed constitution and warned of possible violent repercussions.

Under the proposed constitution, African extremists would be denied their demand for a "one-man-one-vote" constitution. Instead, it would create 80,000 Negro voters in place of the current approximately 10,000.

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green Tuesday expressed "cautious optimism" that order could be restored in the Congo by United Nations forces working under the powers given them by the latest Security Council resolution. (See also Page 3.)

"I don't think it [the resolution] is perfect, but it should go far to strengthen the hand of the United Nations," he said.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Inga Santala, a quiet, 46-year-old housewife from Nipigon, was sentenced Tuesday to nine years in penitentiary for an acid-throwing attack on a doctor she blamed for her child's death.

Mrs. Santala, dressed in black, sat in the prisoner's box of the Port Arthur courthouse, head bowed and eyes closed.

She winced as Mr. Justice S. N. Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court passed sentence after describing her attack on Dr. E. R. Somerleigh as "vengefully premeditated and monstrous."

Mrs. Santala admitted waiting for Dr. Somerleigh in the back seat of his car until he emerged from a town council meeting. She poured the acid over his head as he drove away from the town hall.

During the trial, psychiatrist Dr. Kenneth Gray of Toronto testified that Mrs. Santala was obsessed with the belief that

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

SUPPOSE we could all vote for or against a law by pressing a button on the television set.

Suppose that every major action of a government had to be tested in a lightning plebiscite. The voters would have a glorious time rejecting everything that cost them money—in the same way that thrifty municipal ratepayers reject new schools.

The vote-indicator panel in Ottawa would flash and crackle like the Northern Lights, as the people threw out such money-eating monsters as the army, navy, air force, the CBC and Parliament; abolished taxes, and voted themselves pensions.

Then—after the binge was over—the hang-over would begin. The people would rush to their machines and vote those costly things back again—or some of them.

No politician (and especially, no statesman) would be able to govern if his decisions were subject to change at any moment by popular whim.

But a nation-wide referendum machine would be useful in telling the government how the voters felt.

And if you asked the voters today: "Do we want nuclear bombs and shells for the Canadian armed forces?" the answer would probably be a decisive: "No."

I don't think the people want atomic bombs on our soil.

Do we need the bomb in Canada, to scare the Russians? It might help do that. But the Russians are fairly frightened already. They may be ready to listen to peace talk—tough peace talk.

They might be impressed if the United States said: "We have decided not to give nuclear arms to Canada. And Canada has decided that she doesn't want them. We are working together to prevent the spread of fear. We hope you will do the same."

If the subject popped up on the screen of my electronic opinion recorder, that is the policy I would vote for.

But if the West and East go on flexing their muscles, piling up nuclear brickbats and making faces across the sea, there is a real danger that one day they will scare each other to death.

Your Good Health

Lock Up Medicine Stop Early Riser

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: I need your advice. I have three children, aged five, four and three. The girl, five, is a very well adjusted to life and takes every thing in stride, but the boy, four, is a nervous type. Try as I may, I cannot overcome the very serious problem of his getting up in the morning before anyone else, and emptying the medicine cabinets, cupboards, etc. The younger girl, three, is beginning to do the same.

"The boy is not neglected in any way to my knowledge, and is happy when he is praised. Anything you could tell me would be appreciated."

B. A. P.

Jeepers, why don't people ask me easy questions? Let's get down to bedrock on this one. Whether it's emptying the medicine cabinets and cupboards, or something else we have to try our best to figure out why he does it.

TRY SIMPLICITY

Adults, I've found, are sometimes, perhaps usually, baffled by the utter simplicity of the things that activate children. While, naturally, I am wholly in accord with the things that the child psychologists and psychiatrists are gradually teaching us, I think we are sometimes too apt to hunt for complex answers when we ought to stick to simple ones.

In the above case, I don't think the four-year-old was frightened by a medicine cabinet when he was two weeks old.

Before we go on, let's insert this: I'm thoroughly worried about kids getting into medicine cabinets. A handful of "candy" from an aspirin bottle can be dangerous, even deadly.

A sip of "fever pop" from an antiseptic bottle can be serious. A hook at the very top of the cabinet can be good insurance.

It's also wise, as I've said before, to keep only the simplest, most harmless things in a medicine cabinet. But even corn plaster, nail files. The problem isn't cupboards. The problem is an energetic little boy who has to learn, and be helped, to stay in bed until it's time to get up, and mouthwash can be perilous. So keep the kids out, and keep dangerous things out.

Now what about the four-year-old explorer who gets up and prowls while everyone else is asleep? He's obviously an energetic, enterprising young one. But is his problem cabinets and cupboards? No.

This, it seems to me, comes down to a simpler answer: If, day after day, he gets up before anyone else, then maybe he needs less sleep. Maybe keeping him up another 30 minutes or an hour at night might solve the whole thing.

STAY IN BED

But with or without that, I think he also needs discipline. By "discipline," I don't mean "punishment." Those are two different things. But he does need to learn that, at his age, he is supposed to stay in bed until his parents say, "Get up!"

Traffic death in Oak Bay last Thursday evening of Mrs. Ethel Augusta King, 78, of 1270 Beach Drive, was ruled accidental by a coroner's jury yesterday.

The accident occurred about 9:30 on a rainy, windy evening, and jurors heard testimony of dark clothing worn by the victim, a pedestrian, and headlights blindingly briefly the driver of the car involved.

SWEEP TWICE

Jurors and Coroner Dr. J. H. Moore were told by Martin Chambers, 21, of 3811 Miramones, that he was driving south on Beach Drive near the beachhouse when lights of an oncoming car swept twice across his windshield as the other vehicle negotiated a slight curve in the road.

"I was blinded completely," he said, "and then suddenly I could see perfectly, and this lady was right in front of my right fender. I seemed to hit her and stop the car in the same moment."

Witnesses testified that Mrs. King, a widow who lived alone in an apartment block at the accident scene, was walking diagonally across Beach from the ocean side of Beach toward her home when the accident occurred.

At the time she was wearing a black hat, black fur coat and dark blue skirt.

PASSING CAR

She was taken immediately to Royal Jubilee Hospital in the car of passing motorist Clifford Brown, 1945 Ash, and pronounced dead on arrival.

Dr. Ross McNeely, hospital pathologist, said death was caused by brain damage and skull fractures.

'Why Not Socialize Gospel?'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Richard Seaborn (PC, Wellington) delivered a sermon in the Manitoba legislature Tuesday to underline his personal war against socialism.

The Conservative member said socialism could never be reconciled with a Christian concept of life. Socialism was being offered to the Canadian people in various subtle ways. One of the most "deceptive and alluring is this present drive for socialized medicine," Mr. Seaborn added.

He said the human body was the responsibility of the individual, not the state. But "we are directly responsible to God for the care and use of our bodies."

Mr. Seaborn said: "If we are to socialize medicine for the body, why not socialize the gospel for the spirit?" He said: "The purpose of the state is . . . to protect the life and liberties of the people . . . the point socialism attacks."

Treatment of City Chinese

Shocked MLA Urges Police Action Probe

By PETER BRUTON

A Victoria MLA last night said he was "surprised and shocked" by Victoria city police treatment of a Chinese motorist involved in a minor collision earlier this month.

Waldo Skillings (SC-Victoria) asked for an investigation of the incident in which Low Suit Yew was arrested, spent six hours in city jail and was finally released on $1,000 bail on a careless driving charge.

NO ONE ELSE

He said he had never heard of anyone else being arrested on such a charge in his 34 years in Victoria.

He read a letter from Harry Lou-Poy, secretary of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Society, outlining the circumstances of the case. Copies of the letter have been sent to Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock and the Victoria Police Commission.

DRIVING CAR

Low Suit Yew, an employee of the B.C. government ferries at Swartz Bay, was driving his car to work with three other employees about 1.30 p.m. Feb. 4 when he was involved in a collision with another car at Hillside and Douglas.

Damage to Mr. Low's car was $18 and the other, $87. No one was injured and the collision was a minor one.

END RESULT

"Upon the collision happening a police constable of the city police came to the scene and the end result was that Low Suit Yew was arrested, taken to the city police station and charged with driving without due care and attention," stated the letter.

"There is evidence that Low

LOW SUIT YEW
... not abusive

Suit Yew was not abusive or obstructive to the police officer concerned. Having regard to the minor nature of the accident there would appear to have been no justification for an arrest being made."

RECALL CASE

Mr. Lou-Poy stated that he had been unable to find anyone who could recall a case where a person accused of careless driving had been arrested.

"The fact that an arrest was made in this case, where a Chinese was involved, leads us to conclude that he was discriminated against because of his race," stated the letter.

Mr. Low was taken to the police station and put in jail, where he remained six hours before bail was arranged. He was required to raise $1,000 bail, pay lawyer's fees of $75 to have bail arranged, and was refused permission to drive his car.

"In addition to suffering the humiliation of being placed in the city jail for this period, he also lost a day's pay and, in fact, until the full facts were put before his superior, he almost lost his job for not showing up to work," said the letter.

WARRANTED

"While we do not concur with those who continually criticize the actions of the police, we do feel that this is a case where criticism is both warranted and justified," continued the letter from Mr. Lou-Poy.

He asked Attorney-General Bonner, Chief Blackstock and the police commission to conduct "a full investigation" and "if it is found, as we suspect it will be found, that the man in question was falsely arrested without just cause or reason," appropriate disciplinary action should be taken to prevent further actions by city police officers.

FULL RESTITUTION

"We further feel that full restitution should be made in that court records of arrest be stricken out and also full financial reimbursements should be made for all out-of-pocket expenses caused by this unfortunate and serious mistake on the part of our local law enforcement officer," stated the letter.

Mr. Low, who lives at 1159 North Park, was fined $45 in police court Feb. 6 on a charge of careless driving.

NO PRIOR RECORD

Because he had no prior record, and because it was said on his behalf that his work required him to get to the B.C. ferries at Swartz Bay very early his driver's licence was not suspended.

He was arrested at the accident scene, by Const. A. V. Harwood, city police traffic division.

NOTHING TO SAY

Chief Const. John Blackstock said yesterday that he had nothing to say of the case, other than that he was preparing a full report for the attorney-general's department. Const. Harwood also had no comment.

Mr. Skillings told the legislature that the attorney-general should investigate the city police action and that if it was found the man had been falsely arrested some disciplinary action should be taken against the officer concerned.

Compensation should also be paid Mr. Low, he said.

Preparation For Rain Pays Off

Heavy rainfall of the last two days has not produced "anything like the difficulties Victoria city would have had four or five years ago," city engineer James Garbutt said yesterday.

A systematic program of investigation, improvement and cleaning in recent years, he said "has really paid off."

Theatre On Rails

Theatre on rails of the Canadian Forestry Association opened a week-long engagement at the E & N Railway yards near Victoria West Park yesterday.

Around the Island

Disputed Ferry Link Campbell River Topic

CAMPBELL RIVER — Controversial subject of duplication of passenger ferry service linking Kelsey Bay with north island points will be discussed at a Campbell River Chamber of Commerce meeting tomorrow night.

Capt. H. J. Terry, president of Northland Navigation Co., will explain his company's action in going into competition against Murray Marine Services.

Invitations have been sent to delegations from Port Hardy, Alert Bay and Kelsey Bay.

NANAIMO — A man who drove his car on the wrong side of the road while impaired was fined $125 by Magistrate Lionel Beevor Polts yesterday.

Pleading guilty to the charge, John Eric Anderson, a part time worker of View Street, Nanaimo, had nothing to say.

The magistrate impressed on Anderson that although traffic was light at 1 a.m. on Feb. 21 he and his car constituted a traffic hazard.

ALBERNI — A budget totalling $1,516,428 submitted to council by the school board of District 70 was referred to committee of the whole for study.

During the 45-minute council meeting, one of the shortest and calmest since Mayor Mabel Anderson took office in January, 1957, council passed accounts amounting to $25,678, and the mayor thanked City Clerk James Sawyer for preparing an itemized statement in line with her repeated requests.

COBBLE HILL — Dairyman Archie Stevenson has been re-elected president of the Cowichan-Cobble Hill 4-H Council. Other officers are Mrs. Hamish Sibbald, vice-president; Miss Mona Melrose, secretary; and Mrs. Harry Standen, treasurer.

Thirty diesel and 12 automotive course graduates will take part in the ceremony.

TOFINO — A total of 75 families have taken out membership in the public library here and agreed to pay increased annual dues of $2 each at the library board's annual meeting recently.

Mrs. Robert Douglas, board chairman, reported that proceeds of a concert and whist drive held last year will be placed in the building fund. Combined receipts amounted to $158.

ALBERNI — Cameron E. O. Clark of Nanaimo was fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

The charge arose out of a collision on Beaver Creek Road between cars driven by Clark and Sherman Lauder of Alberni. Lauder suffered a broken arm.

THETIS ISLAND — Hugh Edward Wade, 69, a steam engineer who retired here, will be buried today. He died Saturday at home.

Born at Brownsville Junction, Maine, U.S.A., he came to Canada in 1901, to Victoria, where he grew up and was educated. Later he worked at Victoria Machinery Depot and in Glasgow, Scotland.

After getting steam engineers papers he worked in many B.C. logging camps.

Surviving are his wife, Enaley; two sons, Robert at the participants because the unified service will be eligible for an extra $42,000 in federal grants.

"We will have better service at the same or less cost," Ald. M. H. Mooney said. In Victoria city's case, the cost is expected to be about $20,000 a year less at the outset.

Staffs of the present health services, covering the area from Sooke to Salt Spring, will remain almost entirely in their present positions, he and Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson said, but several new appointments will be made including a senior medical health officer and a medical examiner; basic services will be standardized over the whole area, and all resources could be used when needed by the metropolitan board.

The board will include one representative each from city council, Esquimalt council, Oak Bay council, Greater Victoria school board and the Saanich and South Vancouver Island board.

According to a distribution worked out chiefly by City Manager C. C. Wyatt, Victoria will pay $69,606 of a $237,867 budget exclusive of the federal contribution; Esquimalt, $9,382; Oak Bay, $11,256; school board, $58,144; and the Saanich and South Vancouver Island unit, $155,894.

John Thomas Neen, 77, died at his Neen Road, East Wellington home. He had been a resident of the Nanaimo district for 48 years.

Born at Cumberland, Eng.

land, Mr. Neen worked in the Nanaimo coal mines when he first arrived here. He later became a farmer and an official of the Farmers' Institute.

He is survived by his wife, Henrietta, a son, William Harvey, Winter Harbour; two daughters, Mrs. Richard Fiddick, Nanaimo, and Mrs. Amy Vanstone, Nanaimo; and one brother, Robert, Vancouver.

PORT ALBERNI — One of the world's oldest sports is being organized here by the district's newest club.

The International Order of Foresters is sponsoring a local archery club, but membership will not be limited to Foresters.

The club held its second meeting at Recreation Park Sunday.

The interest shown by over a score of youngsters who turned out to practise with equipment lent for the afternoon by H. Wiseman posed one of the many problems for which the club will be looking for solutions.

Bruce Watson is president for a three-month period, with Mrs. J. B. Young, secretary-treasurer, and F. Kirkpatrick, vice-president.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A man known unofficially as Campbell River's "Good Citizen" died suddenly Monday night while working at the job he liked best — instructing youngsters in recreational activities.

John Jakel, in his early 30s, collapsed and died while instructing members of the Campbell River Recreation Association in the high school auditorium.

During his 10 years in the community he had devoted much of his time to youth work and was popular among the association's hundreds of young members.

He died of a heart attack.

Mr. Jakel is survived by his wife, Ethel, at home, and one son, Allan, in Campbell River.

PARKSVILLE — Maintenance of the natural resources of this district to ensure a thriving tourist industry was stressed by David Hurn, regional fisheries biologist, in an address to Parksville and District Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Hurn outlined the development of the Big Qualicum River, a new project of the fisheries department, and said the tourist industry is a direct byproduct of natural resources. It is only by maintaining and developing our natural resources that the district can hope to continue to attract tourists, he said.

Mr. Hurn also reported that the development of a provincial park at Spider Lake is being considered.

The boys had been fishing from Lakes Creek Bridge.

Clark Sturton, a cub in the Fourth Duncan Cub Pack, saw his brother slip into deep water and disappear. He ran around from the bridge, climbed down the bank and waded into the creek to his waist.

When Kent bobbed to the surface briefly Clark threw him one end of a hastily discarded sweater and pulled him to safety.

Homes Close Together Views Miles Apart

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

MEASURING THE MEN: We picked up some more incidental intelligence about the three candidates so far chosen for the Esquimalt-Saanich federal by-election yesterday. Here it is: The New Party's Glen Hamilton lives but two doors away from the Conservatives' George Chatterton...

George Chatterton... Mr. Hamilton was born in Robin, Manitoba; the Liberals' David Gross in Milwaukee, and Mr. Chatterton in South Africa... Fighting for the seat formerly held by Maj.-Gen. George E. Pearkes, VC — Canada's defence minister before becoming lieutenant-governor — are three candidates, each of whom served in a different branch of the service: Mr. Hamilton the army, Mr. Gross the navy, and Mr. Chatterton the RCAF.

The latter two men are both "unemployed."

THE HEART OF THE MATTER: Members of the legislature were each given a sackful of spuds yesterday, the compliments of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board.

Minister Kenneth Kiernan, a former minister of agriculture, was a little more suspicious than most.

Pulling out his pocket-knife he neatly sliced three of the tubers and closely examined them before pronouncing them "OK."

THE OTHER SIDE: There is so much talk these days of the "irresponsibility" of the daily press that it would be well to consider the reverse side of the coin.

On Dec. 3 last this column said George I. Warren, likeable Mr. Victoria, would retire early this year as head of the Victoria Automobile Club and would be succeeded by Cmdr. John Leeming.

That's not true screamed officials. You're completely wet, there's no truth to such a report.

and said we were wrong. Now we wish we hadn't.

What happened this week? An announcement was made that Mr. Warren will retire March 1 and will be replaced by Mr. Leeming.

A newspaper is in business to report news. It seems that if it does so it is in danger of being labelled irresponsible.

MR. WONDERFUL: The legislative press gallery yesterday was the guest of one of its most illustrious members — former B.C. lieutenant-governor Frank M. Ross.

Mr. Ross, who retired from his post as the Queen's representative in B.C. last year, prizes the honorary membership in the gallery, an honor bestowed on him in 1958.

Before returning to Vancouver he made this comment: "A grave responsibility rests on the members of the press gallery, in that they are responsible for interpreting, through their newspapers and radio stations, the activities and business of the legislature.

"And it is their duty to clearly interpret the actions of the government in power, and equally so, the opinions and criticisms of the opposition, so that at all times the public of B.C. can feel they are fully informed."

"Whatever their personal opinion might be, they must all interpret the facts as they are."

There are two other honorary lifetime members of the press gallery — former Liberal premier Byron ("Boss") Johnson and long-time independent MLA Tom Uphill of Fernie.

CLEAN UP, PAINT UP: The Chinatown Lions Club has decided to "fancify" the Chinese community bulletin board at the corner of Filgard and Government.

The idea came from club president Jack Tang. Eric Jon is looking into the matter.

Pearkes to Take Salute During May 22 Parade

Greater Victoria Celebrations Association received word last night that Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will take the salute during the May 22 Empire Day parade this year.

A spokesman for the committee said that the May Queen crowning will take place May 21 and that a speedboat regatta will take place the same day at Elk Lake.

The Victoria Cycling Club will stage races at Beacon Hill Park on May 20.

Further events will be added as the holiday weekend nears, the spokesman said.

CHECK-OFF GIFTS BANNED TO B.C. POLITICAL PARTIES

Twin Moons Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP)—A pair of satellites launched from Cape Canaveral on a single booster rocket are in orbit, the defence department announced early today.

The doubleheader rocket carries the U.S. Navy's Transit III-B satellite and a smaller hitchhiking vehicle.

SEVERAL REPORTS

The brief announcement by the defence department said reports received from various tracking stations showed the satellites were in orbit.

The main satellite, a 250-pound vehicle, is another step toward development of a system to improve navigation for ships, submarines and airplanes.

TESTS FOR RADIO

The smaller "piggyback" vehicle, 34 pounds in weight, is to be used for radio communications experiments.

The satellites were aimed to ward orbits about 500 miles above earth to criss-cross the equator and travel as far north as Cape Canaveral and as far south as Johannesburg.

NEW BOMBARDMENT

It was the latest shot in America's heaviest bombardment of space. Within the past six days, the U.S. has orbited three other satellites. (See earlier story, Page 3.)

A navy Transit satellite was part of the only other successful twin shot, last June.

Luxton Becomes Lake

Many Ready To Flee Flood

Luxton district residents were ready to evacuate their homes yesterday as rains caused widespread flooding near Greater Victoria.

Nearly three inches of rain fell in the Luxton-Langford area between 5 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. yesterday, proving a major factor in flooding in the Luxton area, just off the Sooke-Happy Valley Road intersection, and in Dewdney Flats which were under a foot of water.

Bliston Creek spilled over its banks, swirled around homes and flooded roads in numerous places.

FOOT DEEP

Water a foot deep flowed across the floors of a creek-side home at 995 Happy Valley, owned by J. V. Alexander. A lame duck swam contentedly about the living room, beneath tables and chairs stacked high with furniture.

Mrs. O. M. Finney, Cogan Road, whose home was surrounded by water, said it was "waist-deep in the basement but didn't harm the furnace which is suspended from the basement ceiling. We've lived here 16 years and we know how to cope with it."

SO DANGEROUS

She said she kept her children, Robin, 10, and Dianne, 8, home from school because flooded roadside ditches were so dangerous.

The family left its car parked on Luxton Road, "a five-minute walk in gumboots from the house."

MEANIES TO BOOT

Mrs. Allen Barnett, 3243 Happy Valley, whose home was surrounded by water, stuck her head out the front door to shout: "Six more inches and it'll be coming in the back door."

She said she didn't know how her husband was going to get in when he comes home from work. "We've got the messies to boot. Everything happens to us," she said.

Mrs. Beverley Hughes, a clerk at Glen Lake Hardware, said:

"The oil man came to fill the tank. But the cap was one inch under water so he tightened it and went away."

TORRE DISPLAY

W. G. Smith, owner of the hardware store, said water came "within three inches" of flooding his furnace.

High winds following the heavy rain tore two 80-pound displays in the shape of paint cans from the roof of his store. One crashed to the ground and the other landed on some other part of the roof.

A number of students on their way home from Happy Valley Elementary School and Belmont Junior-Senior High School had to wade up to their knees through flooded low spots in the road.

CREWS BURY

In Victoria, 2.16 inches of rain fell during a 24-hour period ending at 4 p.m. yesterday. All municipal work crews were out clearing drains, culverts and catch-basins of rain-swept debris.

Bowker Creek, boggy of many past floods, was running deep and swift along its whole course yesterday, but stayed within its reinforced banks. Some homes and a few business firms experienced basement flooding.

Swimming in foot-deep water inside Happy Valley home of J. V. Alexander yesterday is this tame duck. Chesterfield was placed on table to keep it from soaking.

Rhodesia Proposal Angers Both Sides

LONDON (UPI)—Britain Tuesday proposed a new Northern Rhodesia constitution which it said slashed across racial lines and would provide for elections based on the candidate's personal qualities and not the color of his skin.

Almost immediately, federal prime minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland "unequivocally" rejected the proposed constitution and called up 3,000 white reservists to active duty tomorrow.

Welensky bitterly attacked the British plans to increase colored influence in the protectorate in a statement in the federal capital of Salisbury in Southern Rhodesia.

Spokesmen for extremist elements among the 2,500,000 blacks in the central African protectorate also denounced the proposed constitution and warned of possible violent repercussions.

Under the proposed constitution, African extremists would be denied their demand for a "one-man-one-vote" constitution. Instead, it would create 80,000 Negro voters in place of the current approximately 10,000.

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green Tuesday expressed "cautious optimism" that order can be restored in the Congo by United Nations forces working under the powers given them by the latest Security Council resolution. (See also Page 3.)

"I don't think it (the resolution) is perfect, but it should go far to strengthen the hand of the United Nations," he said.

Nine Years Jail for Acid-Throwing Woman

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Inga Santala, a quiet, 46-year-old housewife from Nipigon, was sentenced Tuesday to nine years in penitentiary for an acid-throwing attack on a doctor she blamed for her child's death.

Mrs. Santala, dressed in black, sat in the prisoner's box of the Port Arthur courthouse head bowed and eyes closed. She winced as Mr. Justice S. N. Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court passed sentence after describing her attack on Dr. E. R. Somerleigh as "vengefully premeditated and monstrous."

Mrs. Santala admitted waiting for Dr. Somerleigh in the back seat of his car until he emerged from a town council meeting. She poured the acid over his head as he drove away from the town hall.

During the trial, psychiatrist Dr. Kenneth Gray of Toronto testified that Mrs. Santala was obsessed with the belief that

Labor Bill Demands Union Funds Report

By PETER BRUTON

B.C. unions will be forbidden to contribute to the New Party through dues check-offs.

New labor legislation, introduced by Labor Minister Leslie R. Peterson last night, prohibits the payment of any money collected by an employer from a union member's salary to a political organization.

All unions will have to make a statutory declaration stating that no money collected by the check-off system will be contributed, either directly or indirectly, to a political organization or a candidate seeking political office.

NOTHING TO STOP

There is nothing to stop individual unionists from contributing to the party of their choice on a voluntary, individual basis.

The new provision was one of 40 amendments to the Labor Relations Act.

CCF spokesmen immediately termed the move "class warfare."

Among other provisions of the new labor code were:

• All B.C. unions must make available an annual financial statement.

• A judge may no longer call a union's certification or the check-off of dues system if he decides a strike is illegal.

• It is more difficult for employers to "lockout" a union.

• A conciliation officer has power to recommend that a conciliation board not be appointed.

• Procedure set up to bring quick settlement of grievances raised by union members.

There was no mention of a right-to-work law, frequently speculated upon since Mr. Peterson announced some three weeks ago that new labor legislation would be introduced.

SOME UNIONS

The move against union contributions to political parties has apparently been brought about by the decision of some unions to make contributions to the New Party which will be officially formed later this year by merging the CCF, labor and farmer groups in Canada.

Under the present provisions of the Labor Relations Act an employer is compelled to check-off union dues from an employee's wages. This provision remains in force except where any part of the dues is contributed to a political party.

NEW PROVISIONS

The new provisions read: "No employer and no one acting on behalf of an employer shall refuse to employ a person or his one shall discriminate against a person in regard to employment only because that person refuses to make a contribution or expenditure to or on behalf of a candidate for political office."

ANY MONEYS

"No trade union and no person acting on behalf of a trade union shall directly or indirectly contribute to or expend on behalf of any political party or to or on behalf of any candidate for political office any moneys deducted from an employee's wages . . . or paid as a condition of membership in the trade union."

Remuneration of a member of a trade union for his services in an official union position held by him while seeking election or upon being elected.

'Interference' Says Labor

New labor legislation introduced by the government yesterday seeks to control the internal affairs of labor unions, according to Victoria Labor Council president R. C. Barrie.

"This makes B.C. interference just as bad as that existing in Newfoundland," said Mr. Barrie.

He declared labor unions in

B.C. had no fears of exposing their books "because organized labor in this province is more democratic than our Social Credit government."

The move to prevent use of any part of dues checked off by employers for either direct or indirect political action, said the VLC president, "shows Social Credit is afraid of the New Party."

Ald. A. W. Toome, secretary-treasurer of VLC, termed the same dues check-off amendment "the first step towards government interference in free collective bargaining."

New Act Bill 42

The new act to amend the Labor Relations Act is Bill 42. The labor act two years ago which caused all the commotion was Bill 43.

Bad for Everyone Legislature Told

It was a pity that, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson had brought in new labor legislation, Cedric Cox (CCF—Burnaby) told the legislature last night.

"It's bad for labor, it's bad for the trade union movement, and it's bad for the whole province," he said.

"The hon. member cannot discuss the bill," ruled acting Speaker Alex Matthews.

"I'm not," said Mr. Cox. "I haven't even read the bill yet."

Pennsylvania law dating back more than 100 years but still on statute books may put 57-year-old Mabel McCombs in ducking stool if she is convicted of being "common scold." She was held for a hearing on charges brought by neighbors. (AP Photofax.)

Britain Wants China To Be Seated in UN

LONDON (AP)—Britain will try to convince the U.S. that world disarmament can be advanced if Red China is seated in the UN. It was learned authoritatively Tuesday.

This will form a major British argument when Prime Minister Macmillan meets President Kennedy in Washington early in April.

But informants added there is no intention to exert heavy pressure to get the U.S. to change its policy toward Peking.
